A Hancock County resident was the victim of an Internet car scam, costing him thousands of dollars, according to Hancock County Sheriff's Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt.

A news release from the sheriff's investigator's office said, "On April 22, a resident of Diamondhead reported to authorities that he was the victim of an Internet fraud. The victim explained to investigators that he had advertised and automobile for sale on the Internet for $15,900 and that an individual contacted him saying he was interested in purchasing the vehicle, and having it shipped to Nigeria."

"During the correspondence the individual told the victim that an acquaintance of his owed him $21,000, and that he would have this person mail the victim a cashier's check for that amount. The victim was told to use the check to cover the cost of the vehicle and the excess moneys to pay the shipping costs,

McDonald earns surprise award at Salute to Industry

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission on Friday honored Dave McDonald with a surprise award for "Outstanding Service to Industrial Development" during the annual Salute to Business & Industry Gala at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

"It is the Port & Harbor's great honor to recognize Mr. McDonald for more than 30 years of outstanding service to industrial development in Hancock County," commission Executive Director Hal Walters said.

Dave McDonald is an ageless community hero with great courage. When he was honorably discharged from the military in 1946, he had achieved the rank of Captain, and also earned the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. At 82, he remains actively involved in his church, numerous volunteer efforts, and the economic development of Hancock County.

Following his military discharge, Mr. McDonald worked in his family's lumber business and later opened McDonald Flooring.

For the generous contribution of his time to make Hancock County a better place in which to live, work and rear a family, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce named him Citizen of the Year in 1993.

Perhaps among his most unselfish work is Mr. McDonald's 31 years of service on the county's economic development governing board—the last 11 of which have been as its President. In fact, much of the success of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission is due to his personal efforts to recruit industries to Hancock County. He is the Commission's longest serving member in its 40-year history, and even personally recruited the first tenant to the Port Bienville Industrial Park. Since then, the Park has grown to include 18 industries employing over 1,400.

Under his leadership, the Commission has taken the Stennis International Airport from a sleepy little general aviation airfield with a short runway and no instrument capabilities to one poised to become a major regional player in air cargo. With its new instrument landing system, 8,500' runway and parallel taxiway, the Airport recently landed an aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul company that employs over 40 aircraft technicians.

A devoted husband, Mr. McDonald and his wife Lucy have been married for 60 years and have a son, daughter and 5 grandchildren. A life member of the United Methodist Church, he taught Sunday school for 31 years, and has been the President of the Methodist Campgrounds Board.

He is a member of the Gulf Coast Economic Development Council and the Dupont DeLisle Plant Advisory Committee. He is also Treasurer of the Catrina McDonald Scholarship Fund, and was disaster chairman for the County following both Hurricanes Betsy and Camille. He is a past President of the local Rotary Club, and is still an active member of the Hancock County Historical Society.

Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off is Monday

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The annual American Cancer Society's Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off is set for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, May 3, at Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex.

Among the competitors this year will be the Bay-Waveland School District and Hancock County School District's school boards.

Also new competitors will include Pearl River Community College and Big Daddy's Restaurant.

Competition for top honors this year should be very keen, reports Bay Mayor Eddie Favre the general chairman.

Bay St., Louis Fire Chief Bobby Gavagnie is vice-chairman and along with Mayor Favre and long with several others have worked very hard in recent weeks for the annual fund raiser for the Cancer Society.

"This is really a fun-filled fund raiser for all the participants, as well as the general public and the benefactor is the American Cancer Society," Favre emphasized.

Entry to the Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex will be through the casino, Favre said, adding, "Children will be escorted to the Entertainment Complex."

An entry fee is $6 for the general public and they can eat all the beans and rice they desire.

The general public also plays an important role in the Cook-Off, as they have the opportunity of voting for the Peoples Choice Awards in each division.

In addition to the Peoples Choice awards, a special selection of judges will select the winners in each category.

Gavagnie reported the judges for the beans & rice include: J.J. Jagunich, Linda Cook, Liz Renz, Carey Duncan, along with a "Very Special Judge."

While on the subject of judges, one of the new teams this year comprises Justice Court Judges Tommy Carver, Ricky Adam and Jay Lagasse.

Top honors from the Bean Judges will be the Golden Bean award and the Camellia Bean award for the most Creative Beans. There are many trophies to be awarded.

There is also a special corn bread category for the Best Corn Bread.

The corn bread judges are: Betsy Ashman, Debbie Donaldson, Darlene Underwood and Ellis C. Cuevas.

The competition will be in five categories this year: restaurants, government, organizations, businesses and families.

Today, tonight and tomorrow morning large pots of beans will be brewing throughout the county.

Camellia red beans' distributor has supplied the red beans and the contestants provide the rice and special seasonings and ingredients.

In addition to the Cook-Off, there will be a Silent Auction. Marilyn Finch is the silent auction chairman.

On Friday Finch said, "We have some great items this year, such as a golf package, Beau Rivage weekend stay, a CD stereo, certificates for several local restaurants, and even Wave Pool passes, etc."

Jimmie Ladner, Hancock County Assessor/Tax Collector is the recruiter chairman, along with assistance from Sandra Hoda.

Melanie Mitchell will be working raffles and the Hancock County Retired Senior Volunteer Program members will be assisting with ticket taking, etc.

The 2004 Cook-Off will mark the 15th for Hancock County. Among the organizers for the first few Cook-Offs were Janet McQueen, Anne Schmidt Andry and Basil Kennedy. McQueen and Andre chaired the event for several years.

World Press Freedom Day

Democracy disappears with 'secret' stamp

Monday is World Press Freedom Day, a time to honor those nations that embrace one of democracy's most essential rights.

Few in the United States are familiar with this important commemoration, which marks the May 3 anniversary of the 1991 signing of the "Windhoek Declaration" in Africa that calls for free, independent and pluralist media in every country.

Perhaps that is because we Americans take our First Amendment rights as a given. But sadly, these basic freedoms do not exist throughout much of the world, where media repression is the norm. Around the globe, in places like Cuba and China and parts of the Middle East, journalists routinely face censorship, imprisonment and assault. Many have given their lives, 36 in 2003, at least 17 more this year, in pursuit of truth. According to the New York-based Committee to Protect Journalists, another 136 were jailed in each of the past two years as a direct result of their work.

Just as World Press Freedom Day is an occasion to celebrate nations where media are free, it also should be used to spotlight societies where suppression and repression thrive.

And, it can serve as a reminder for all Americans to vigorously oppose those, including some in our own government, whose policies and actions threaten our status as the most open nation in history.

Recently, that climate of openness has been threatened as national security concerns have been used as a pretense to close the door on the people's right to know.

Certainly, there is justification for classifying information that could clearly endanger our fellow citizens.

But increasingly, champions of open government, Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, are warning that national security is being used by government officials and clever corporations as a pretense to withhold information that might prove embarrassing or reveal illegalities.

As literally tens of millions of previously public documents have been stamped "secret," it has become more difficult for the press to perform its historic watchdog role. And, average citizens cannot acquire information essential for their own well-being. In the past, that information has been used to expose hazardous waste dumps, rogue police officers, dangerous chemical accidents, aviation safety records, or even whether your next door neighbor has been injured in a train or plane crash.

So what does World Press Freedom Day have to do with classifying government records? Plenty! For as we walk down the path of official secrecy, a little bit of democracy disappears with every step.

Freedom of information is healthy for society. It encourages public debate, reveals wrongdoing and holds government officials accountable. It has made us the great nation we are.

But when public information slips from sunlight into darkness, ignorance and tyranny quickly follow. And the United States ceases to be the model to which repressive nations should aspire.

As First Amendment scholar Paul McMaster has said: "Freedom and independence for the press is not a special privilege for journalists. It is a special protection for the people."

Don't miss Red Beans & Rice Day

For as long as I can remember, red beans and rice has been a Monday staple meal in this area.

As a youngster, I can recall my mother always having red beans and rice on Mondays.

Now tomorrow, is really a special Red Beans & Rice Day, as it is the 15th annual Cook-Off benefit for the American Cancer Society.

The event will be held at Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex, Bay St. Louis, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre, general chairman for the fund raiser, has lined up the best red beans and rice cookers in Hancock County, and a few from other places for this big event.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas

So, for lunch tomorrow, you may want to make a $6 donation to the American Cancer Society and eat all the red beans and rice your heart desires.

And you can vote for who you think is the best bean cooker.

Oh yes, there will be many flavors of cornbread too.

This is a community project and as most of you know, cancer strikes a member of just about every family.

I hope to see you at the Cook-Off tomorrow at lunch.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Congratulations are in order for everyone honored Friday night at the 2004 Salute to Business and Industry Gala held at Casino Magic's Cypress Grove Ballroom.

Of all those named as Outstanding Citizens, I have known many of them for a number of years and they are very deserving.

It is great that there are so many folks giving back to the community in so many ways.

The owners of the businesses and industries which were honored also need to be congratulated on the awards they received.

It is a great honor to be recognized by your peers.

The Salute to Business and Industry grows each year and this is great.

The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau along with the many supporting agencies, etc. also need to be commended for recognizing those who really need to be.

It seemed everyone had a great time at the event.

A Lesson Worth Learning

Mississippians are talking a lot about education right now, yet one of our state's most significant educational opportunities is going unnoticed by many educators, students and citizens alike. All Mississippians should see the "Glories of Baroque Dresden" exhibit in Jackson, especially our students. If we truly care about our lifelong education, children and adults will take advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity before the exhibit departs our state September 6.

German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder personally visited Jackson for the opening of this $9.5 million project which is appearing exclusively at the Mississippi Arts Pavilion. He did so because this is the first major artistic and cultural exchange presented in North America since East Germany and West Germany were reunified more than a decade ago. It contains about 400 pieces, including 20 master paintings by artists like Rembrandt, classic Japanese and Chinese porcelain, and even treasured hunting rifles used by the German nobility - all priceless artifacts dating from the 1690s to 1760s.

Jack Kyle, Executive Director of the Glories of Baroque Dresden exhibit, has really put Mississippi on the international cultural map in recent years bringing exclusively to Mississippi a series of successful, unique artistic and cultural displays, showcasing master works of art and treasures from Spain and Russia prior to the Dresden exhibit. However, with attendance for the Dresden venture still lagging, Kyle and the Mississippi Commission

An Open Letter from DuPont DeLisle

Dear valued friends and fellow citizens:

On May 6, the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) will hold a public hearing on two air permits requested by DuPont DeLisle. In the spirit of open dialogue, the purpose in this letter is to share with you the facts about these permits.

DuPont DeLisle operates in a global marketplace that is constantly changing. In order for us to remain competitive, we must also change and we must expand our productive capability to meet global demand. This is why we have requested these permits. DuPont DeLisle ships 50 percent of our products to global markets. This protects more than 1,000 jobs at the plant as well as other jobs in our community. Our ability to grow in the future also protects our role as an active corporate citizen and taxpayer.

Specifically, these permits will improve our ability to serve customers worldwide, to reduce our dependence on fossil fuels, and to correct technical errors in an existing permit. Both permits will increase monitoring, reporting and record-keeping requirements.

These permits also will guide us in continuing to reduce our impact on the environment while adding, and building upon, the value we bring to the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Overall, the air permits will decrease DuPont's air emission limits by some 60 percent. And, we will continue to use Best Available Control Technology (BACT), meaning we are using the most efficient emission control technology that EPA requires to be economically feasible and proven to operate reliably.

One of the permits will enable DuPont to increase our productive capability by 16 percent through the elimination of production bottlenecks. A 16 percent increase does not mean an increase in emissions by the same amount. While we anticipate a small incremental increase in air emissions, we still will be well below National Ambient Air Quality Standards.

This permit also will allow us to burn gas generated from existing biomass resources. By using this renewable fuel, we will save natural gas and help reduce net air emissions on the Gulf Coast. This sustainable growth project adds value while reducing the impact on the environment.

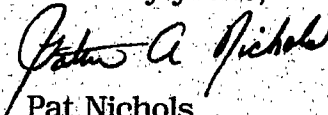

The other permit will correct technical errors made by DuPont in two previous applications for permits in 1989 and 1998. These errors resulted from DuPont using the wrong calculations for emissions, resulting in violations that were settled with MDEQ earlier this month.

DuPont will continue to meet National Ambient Air Quality Standards as we have since the DeLisle Plant began operations 25 years ago. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) determines these standards based on human health studies, setting them to ensure that the health of the most sensitive individuals is protected. It is important to note that the US EPA recently announced that these standards (which include ozone) are being met in Mississippi.

DuPont is determined to be the most successful and competitive science company in the 21st century. We will do so through sustainable growth, which we define as creating value for society and our shareholders while reducing our environmental footprint. This objective is a natural outgrowth of the values we hold at our company – safety and health, environmental stewardship, ethics, and respect for people.

All of us who live, work, worship and play here on the Gulf Coast, want the same thing – a clean, safe place to live and raise our families, as well as access to all the benefits that an economically viable community can offer. We at DuPont DeLisle are absolutely committed to doing our part.

Sincerely yours,

Pat Nichols

Port projects slowed by last-minute changes

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Port and Harbor Commissioners approved a resolution to re-advertise for bids for the Intermodal Cargo Transfer Facility Improvements Project at South Gate Rd. at Port Bienville last week. Last minute changes made by Compton Engineering to specifications on a bid sheet would have forced the change of the bid opening date. The re-bidding process will set the project back about six weeks, said deputy director Greg Deakle.

Already in the application process are two grants offered by the Mississippi Department of Transportation. One will be used to add a turning lane at Linea Peninsular and the other will be used to add blending lanes and make repairs to the entrance to the port, Deakle said.

Other proposals on the table at the port are two rail improvement projects, culvert replacements, development of port facilities, an update to the current facilities plan and a feasibility study for a plan to take rail service from the port to the John C. Stennis Space Center.

In other business:

• The Hurricane Fair will be held at the airport on Saturday, May 15th. A Navy P-3, a Coast Guard Helicopter and other exhibits will be on display. Vendors will serve food.

• Phillips Aviation will hold their 19th Annual Old Timer's Memorial Fly-Inn on Sunday, May 16th at Hanger B. at the airport. The fare will be crawfish and chicken and all the fixings.

• Airport manager Bill Cotter reported that the new technology building at Stennis International Airport is now complete. The principal tenant is Optech International. Other tenants include the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Naval Oceanographic Command, the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration and Fugro Chance.

Also completed is construction on apron expansion and blast pad projects.

• Port Bienville facilities manager Steve Landry said that the slab for the new 75,000 gallon per day treatment plant at the port is completed. The package plant should be arriving at the site this week, Landry said. Eventually the port plans to up the treatment capacity to 150,000 gallons per day. Outflow from the plant is into area waterways.

• The Commission has added 2,300 sq. feet of rented space to their office facilities on Hwy. 90. The new space, located adjacent to the current offices, will house the accounting department.

• Commissioners entered into an executive session to discuss legal fees concerning Wellman Inc., a tenant at Port Bienville. The fee, a line item on the April docket for the port, was questioned by commissioners. Deputy director Greg Deakle asked that commissioners consider discussing the matter in executive session. Commissioner Harry Farve made the motion and Commissioner Chari Rapp seconded the motion.

• President David McDonald, and Commissioners Robert Kane, Farve, Rapp, Jody Compretta, Kevin Hill and Anthony Sahuque were present at the meeting.

for International and Cultural Exchange have tailored the exhibit specifically toward school groups - providing for a $25,000 grant to be awarded for the Mississippi school which brings to the exhibit 400 or more people. That's a challenge I hope every school in Mississippi will take, while it's still available.

These artifacts not only testify to their creators' talents, or the period from which they originate, some of these artifacts have touched the lives of Mississippians in some way. Maybe your grandfather or the aging neighbor down the street took a dreaded trip to Dresden in 1945 - aboard a bomber trying to stop Hitler's evil regime. They weren't trying to destroy these works of art. They probably didn't even know about them, but they were surely trying to save the freedom that led to their creation and which sustains their exhibit for us here today.

The Glories of Baroque Dresden exhibit represents the decades-old reconciliation of the German and American peoples, and the relatively new reconciliation of Germany itself - once-divided, now a wholly democratic and free nation. Many of these items were lost for years, taken away from the world as personal spoils of war by Stalin's communist troops and hidden away before being returned to Germany only after Stalin's death. If only these objects could speak. Well, actually, they can in a way, at least to those willing to listen through our eyes, if not our ears.

Mississippians, especially our students, need to experience the Glories of Baroque Dresden exhibit, not just because it's art from Europe's Baroque Period, and not only because it's here in our state. People of all ages who believe in lifelong education should go because these artifacts don't just represent history, they were a part of it - history that touches us even up until our own time. These treasures were not only part of mankind's most celebrated renaissance, they also were subjected to humanity's most brutal and dark ages, surviving oppressive dictatorships and thriving today in democracy. They tell us that humankind's best achievements can indeed overshadow, endure and outlive our worst intentions. That's something worth seeing and definitely a lesson worth learning.

observed Mr. Benton throw a small plastic bag on the ground as soon as he exited the vehicle," according to the report. "Peterson then picked up the object and discovered that the plastic bag contained several rocks of crack cocaine."

Benton was charged with possession of a controlled substance. Since he was out on bond on a previous charge of possession of crack cocaine, his bond was revoked. He is now being held without bond at the Hancock County Justice Facility.

Late Thursday evening, Waveland Police Officer Todd Blake arrested another Waveland man, Perry Thomas, after observing him "walking up to several vehicles and handing the occupants unknown objects," according to the statement. "Officer Blake then observed Mr. Thomas walk away from the vehicles with money in his hands ... (and) walk to a corner of a building and hide an unknown object."

Varnell said that when

Blake approached Thomas to question him, he "discovered a plastic bag containing crack cocaine in the exact location where Mr. Thomas was standing. Mr. Thomas admitted that the crack cocaine did belong to him."

Thomas was charged with possession of a controlled substance, crack cocaine, and is being held on a $10,000 bond. Agent Ian Estorffe of the Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force is investigating both cases.

and to send the remaining balance to a third party.

"The victim received a cashier's check for $21,000 and cashed it at a local Credit Union. He then made two transactions via Western Union to a location in Nigeria. One transaction was for $3,500 for shipping and the other was $1,350 to a third party.

"The following day, the Diamondhead man was contacted by credit union officials and told the cashier's check he received was a forgery and that he was responsible for $21,000."

The sheriff's department has contacted Federal Authorities, who reported they were familiar with the scam and that the U.S. Secret Service is investigating the scam network, the reported stated.

Hurt emphasized, "All persons need to be very careful in doing business with anyone. Make sure they are legitimate. If it sounds too good to be true, it is probably a scam."

Investigator John Luther is in charge of the investigation.

Manning did it 'his way' and heads to New York

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Big Easy is headed to the Big Apple. Ole Miss' record-setting quarterback Eli Manning made history on Saturday by being the highest drafted Mississippi player ever in the NFL draft.

Manning was drafted by the San Diego Chargers with #1 overall selection and later traded to the New York Giants. Manning's selection as #1-overall is the highest that a player with Magnolia State ties has ever been drafted. The highest drafted players prior to Saturday were Mississippi State LB Johnnie Cooks in 1982 with the #2 selection and Ole Miss legend Archie Manning, Eli's dad, with the #2 selection in 1971.

During the days preceding the draft, the Manning family asked the Chargers organization not to draft the youngest of the first family of football. However, the Chargers stuck to their plan which was to draft Eli and engineer a trade.

It was widely known that the New York Giants coveted the quarterback with the legendary pedigree. Ultimately, a trade was reached about 45 minutes after Eli's selection by the Chargers that sent him to the Giants for New York's #4 overall selection of North Carolina State QB Phillip Rivers. In the trade, the Chargers also received the Giants' third-round pick in 2004 and their first and fifth-round picks in 2005. Manning is the first quarterback taken by the Giants in the first round since Phil Simms was drafted in 1979. Simms won a Super Bowl with New York in 1986.

Eli had threatened to sit out the season in 2004 if the Chargers drafted him. This move was similar to the 1983 move that John Elway engineered when he was drafted by the Baltimore Colts. Elway was traded after the draft to Denver where he played in five Super Bowls, won two rings, and became a Hall of Famer.

While there was much speculation about the stance that the Manning's took, it worked out for both parties in the end. However, take a look at both teams that the Manning scenario was involved in. Both the Chargers and the Giants had identical records of 4-12 in 2003. The Giants last appeared in the Super Bowl three seasons ago while San Diego made their only appearance in the big game back in the mid-1990's.

On paper, the Giants have the better weapons surrounding Eli during his rookie season. The top three receivers on the team will return in 2004 - WR Amani Toomer (63 rec, 1,057 yds, 5 Tds), WR Ike Hilliard (60 rec, 608 yds, 6 Tds), and TE Jeremy Shockey (48 rec, 535 yds, 2 Tds). Don't forget to add in a decent running game with Tiki Barber (278 carr, 1,216 yds). In free agency, the Giants' knew they had to shore up their defense. Of the 13 players they brought in, 9 of them are defensive players.

The Chargers traded away their top receiver in WR David Boston (70 rec, 880 yds, 7 Tds). San Diego's top returning receiver is All-Pro RB LaDainian Tomlinson (100 rec, 725 yds, 4 Tds). Tomlinson is also the team's top returning rusher with 1,645 yards on the ground. Of the 16 players that San Diego traded or released during free agency, 12 are offensive players.

Now, the question is do the Giants' throw Eli on the field as a rookie? That question will be answered soon as the team is currently deciding what to do with Kerry Collins. Collins is in his 9th year out of Penn State. He was a 1st round (#5) pick by the Carolina Panthers in 1995. He figures to count $8.95 million against the team's $80.6 million payroll.

The New York Giants are very familiar with the roads that lead in and out of Oxford, Mississippi. Eli Manning is not the first Ole Miss Rebel to play for the Giants. Since 1942, the Giants have drafted 31 former Rebels and 38 Rebels have suited up for the NFL team.

Merle Hapes was the first Rebel drafted by the Giants in the first round in 1942. The most recent Rebel to play for New York was FB Charles Stackhouse in 2002. 'Chunkin' Charlie Conerly is perhaps the most famous former Rebel to play in the Big Apple. He played from 1948-61, was Rookie of Year in 1948, led the Giants to the 1958 NFL title and was one of the most beloved New York athletes in history. The Conerly Trophy, presented to Mississippi's top college football player, is named in his honor. Eli Manning is the only two-time winner and three-time finalist for the award.

Other notable former Rebels that have suited for the Giants are Jim Poole, Junie Hovious, Ray Poole, Barney Poole, Crawford Mims, Rex Boggan, Jimmy Patton, Eddie Crawford, Billy Lott, Charlie Flowers, Allen Green, Glynn Griffing, Bookie Bolin, Rodney Lowe, Bobby Crespinio, Larry Grantham, and Leon Perry.

Manning led the way in 2004 for the players with Mississippi ties that were drafted/signed in the NFL. Ole Miss has had nine players picked up from their 10-3 season - OT Stacy Andrews (Cincinnati - 4th Rd), DB Von Hutchins (Indianapolis - 6th Rd), DE Charlie Anderson (Houston - 6th Rd), DT Jesse Mitchell (Baltimore - Free Agent), DE Josh Cooper (San Francisco - Free Agent), DB Travis Blanchard (Tampa Bay - Free Agent), RB Ronald McClendon (Tennessee - Free Agent), and WR Chris Collins (Minnesota - Free Agent).

The University of Southern Mississippi had three players drafted by NFL teams - DB Eric Pruitt (Atlanta - 6th Rd), DB Greg Brooks (Cincinnati - 6th Rd), and LB Rod Davis (Minnesota - 5th Rd). No word yet on free agent signings from USM.

On Thursday, April 29, USM had three players sign free agent contracts. DB Corey Yates signed with the St. Louis Rams while TE Terrell Brown signed with the Cleveland Browns. Gulfport native DE Ronald Jones inked with San Francisco.

Mississippi State University had two players sign free agent contracts as of Monday night - WR Justin Jenkins (Philadelphia) and K Brent Smith (New Orleans).

Delta State had one player drafted - DT Anthony Maddox (Jacksonville - 4th Rd). Jackson State QB Robert Kent signed a free agent contract with the Tennessee Titans.

LSU's Stephen Peterman, a Waveland native, was drafted in the third round by the Dallas Cowboys.

Effort on to help Shoreline Park man who lost his home twice

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Having a home is something Charlie Hodge does not take for granted.

Within two years, Hodge has lost one home to flood waters and another to fire. His most recent loss occurred this March when his trailer burned. He lost everything, including the electric wheelchair he used due to his cerebral palsy.

After the fire, the Red Cross paid for his lodging at a local hotel and gave him $100, which he used to purchase new clothes. When his hotel stay came to an end, Hodge temporarily moved in with close friends, Brice and Christine Phillips. After a few weeks there, Hodge said he returned to his property in the Shoreline Park area, which housed a burnt trailer and the camper trailer that flooded in 2002 when Tropical Storm Isidore blew through.

Hodge took shelter in the powerless, rotting trailer that had been his first home there prior to the flood.

"I slept in the hall because everywhere else leaks," he said. "The floor is no good. The ceiling is no good."

During the day, Hodge would wheel himself to the nearby Citgo convenience store about a mile away on Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road. Sometimes neighbors also gave him a lift.

Hodge said he still makes that trip about once a day around 10 or 11 a.m. to have coffee. He usually stays a few hours and eats lunch there as well.

It was there Hodge recently met Chari McIntyre Rapp, a local businesswoman. Rapp said she asked Hodge if he needed her to hand him a cup; he was in a manual wheelchair. She recalled seeing a man rolling down Highway 603 in an electric wheelchair several months earlier and asked if that had been him. He said it had been him, but that wheelchair had burned up along with his home. Someone had given him another electric wheelchair following the fire, but his friends were storing it for him until he found somewhere more permanent to live.

Following their encounter, Rapp and her husband visited Hodge at his property. After seeing his living conditions, she obligated herself to help. Rapp began searching for temporary shelter for her new acquaintance. A neighbor, however, returned to his summer home across the street from Hodge's property and offered him a room.

With a decent roof now over Hodge's head, Rapp has begun a campaign to provide Hodge with a permanent home of his own. She hopes local residents will offer their support with cash and labor donations.

"As a community, we could pull our assets together and provide this man with a home," she said.

Wal-Mart, she said, has already agreed to match up to $1,000 and will discount merchandise used to furnish a new home for Hodge.

Rapp said she hopes to have a small home built on the property with handicap accessibility. Because the property is in a flood zone, Rapp said another trailer would eventually get flooded as well, and Hodge's best option would be an elevated home with a ramp. The burnt trailer has since been removed and plans are underway to remove the second home and clear the property.

"I'd like to see a little one bedroom home here," Hodge said when asked what he wanted.

Rapp said Hodge does not expect the help he receives.

"He will not ask for anything, and he is extremely appreciative of what he gets," she said.

Rapp has begun the process of setting up a trust in Hodge's name.

"She's pouring her heart out to help me, which I appreciate," Hodge said of Rapp. "I think it's excellent."

Along with Rapp, Hodge wanted to thank the Red Cross, Brice and Christine Phillips and Coast Inn and Suites.

Anyone interested in helping or donating money, should call Chari Rapp at 228-467-3777 or 228-216-7079.

Handy to be inducted into Miss. Coast Hall of Jazz

Captain John Handy, internationally famous alto sax player, Negro jazz musician, composer, and recording artist will be posthumously inducted into the Mississippi Coast Jazz Society's Hall of Fame.

Born in 1900, he died in 1971 at his Pass Christian, Mississippi home shortly after his celebrity appearance at the first New Orleans Jazz Fest. At his death, he was honored with two funerals, one in New Orleans, and one in Pass Christian where the first New Orleans style funeral procession on the Gulf Coast was held, having gathered more than 4,000 mourners and participants to "send him home."

The jazz great was even greater than he could imagine as he was eulogized in Life magazine and a special television documentary produced by TV Channel 13 called "Last Journey of a Jazz Man."

During the 1930s to 1960s, Handy's band was known as the Louisiana Shakers, but like many musicians of his time, he sat in with many other famous groups. His father and mother taught their children how to play instruments, with young John Handy mastering the drums at 12, and moved on to violin, clarinet and eventually his own version of an alto sax.

However, it was late in life, during the 1960s, when he made most of his recordings famous and while making playing and recording tours to the Far East and to Europe. Some of his best friends were Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Cab Calloway, Lionel Hampton, Papa Celestin, as well as others.

His unique musical style was a great influence on New Orleans Revival Jazz and as a trendsetter for Rhythm and Blues. Famed Handy tradition numbers such as Handy's Gulf Coast Boogie and Cap'n's Blues are still played 'round the jazz-world.

Handy's final public appearance, just several months prior to his death, was at the New Orleans Jazz Fest in April 1970 where he shared top billing with Mahalia Jackson.

The Capt. Handy induction ceremonies will take place on Tuesday, May 4, 2004 at 10:30 a.m. in the Pass Christian Live Oak Cemetery where Mississippi Coast Jazz Society members will play special jazz tunes in simulating the original funeral procession. Besides living members of his family, there will be "Second Lining" by the Jazz-A-Belle Strutters and eulogizing by the Jazz In The Pass program committee. Jazz In The Pass celebrates its 6th year JazzFest event on Saturday, May 8 at Pass Christian's Memorial Park on Scenic Drive from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Contact info: Dan Ellis --- 462-3188

NASA modifies facility plans

NASA announced a modification in the Public-Private Competition to operate the NASA Shared Services Center (NSSC). The modification was announced after agency review of possible sites for the Center.

NASA's Deputy Administrator Fred Gregory said, "The exceptional quality and creativity of the site proposals caused us to reevaluate the selection process. NASA's goal is to ensure the Public-Private Competition is conducted in a fair and equitable manner in order to achieve maximum advantage to the taxpayer."

NASA's original assumption was one site would be materially superior to all others, and all of the NSSC service competitors would use the selected location. However, during the evaluation process, it became evident all of the nominations exceeded the technical standards set forth in the site nomination criterion and guidelines. After conclusion of the site evaluation, there was no clearly superior proposal that would be of greater benefit to NASA than the others.

NASA concluded the public-private competitors would be in a better position to specifically assess and capitalize on site selection if allowed to choose from all six locations. As part of the public-private process, NASA will allow competitors to incorporate one of the six eligible sites into their proposals. The six sites are in the vicinity of NASA's Kennedy Space Center, Fla.; Glenn Research Center, Cleveland; Johnson Space Center, Houston; Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.; Marshall Space Flight Center, Ala.; and Stennis Space Center, Miss.

The NSSC will perform a variety of consolidated transactional and administrative activities performed at Headquarters and Centers. The NSSC will be an efficient and effective organization that will perform high volume and routine activities. The NSSC will also perform activities that require specialized knowledge or expertise in human resources, information technology, procurement and finance.

On December 12, 2003, NASA announced the Public-Private Competition under OMB Circular A-76 for the NSSC Service Provider. A separate competitive process was initiated in December 2003, to select a site for the shared services center among the NASA field centers. Six proposals for the NSSC site selection process were received on January 30, 2004.

NASA's Administrator and Deputy Administrator concluded visits to all six proposed sites during February/March 2004. NASA evaluated each of the six potential sites, and all were deemed acceptable locations for the NSSC.

Planned selection of the NSSC Service Provider and associated site under the A-76 Public-Private Competition will occur on or before June 2005. The draft Request for Proposal will be released for comment in May, and the final NSSC A-76 solicitation in July 2004. It will stipulate proposals must include one of the six sites NASA already has reviewed.

NASA will consult with each of the six agency site proposal teams to review the A-76 process, how the sites will be represented in the Request for Proposals, and any restrictions necessary to maintain procurement integrity. NASA will work directly with each center and their partners to provide for fair consideration of all six sites. The complete package of each proposer will be evaluated, and NASA will pick the best proposal for the NSSC.

Communities competing for the NSSC will need to revise their infrastructure proposals to reflect a later occupancy date at a specific location. NASA will work with the communities in the coming weeks and months to assist in understanding the A-76 competition process.

State's unemployment rate drops 1 percent

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's unadjusted unemployment rate dropped to 4.6 percent in March, down 1 percent from February.

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission said Wednesday the jobless rate was still lower than at the same time a year ago, when it was 6.8 percent. The jobless rate for February was 5.6 percent. The national adjusted rate was 6 percent.

MESC officials said the economy showed the leisure and hospitality industry added 1,500 jobs. Government jobs saw an increase of 900 jobs, with trade, and transportation added 1,200 jobs. The manufacturing industry got 700 new jobs and the construction industry reported 600 new jobs.

Nine counties posted double-digit unemployment rates.

Sharkey County had the highest rate at 16.4 percent, followed by Jefferson County at 13.4 percent.

Thirty counties had unemployment rates equal to or lower than Mississippi's rate of 4.6 percent. Lamar County has the lowest unemployment rate at 2.2 percent, followed by Rankin at 2.3 percent and DeSoto at 2.5 percent.

MESC officials said April's rate is usually lower than March.

Winn-Dixie to close stores, reduce work force by 10%

AP-JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Struggling supermarket operator Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. plans to cut 10,000 jobs from its payroll by closing or selling 156 stores and three distribution centers and selling several manufacturing businesses over the next year, the company announced Friday.

The job cuts will reduce its work force by about 10 percent. The announcement came as the company reported a sharp decline in its third-quarter profit as sales fell 5.5 percent.

The company said it plans to close 45 unprofitable or poorly located stores and put another 111 stores up for sale and close them if it cannot find buyers. Its stores are mostly in the Southeast and Midwest.

Charles B. "Chuck" Benvenuti

For Chuck Benvenuti, commitment to community is not an option; it is a way of life. He credits his grandmother May Beyer with instilling this need to "give back."

In 1982, he established his own accounting firm, Charles B. Benvenuti, CPA, PA. Today, that firm employs four CPAs with a total staff of seven, and a client base of more than 800 individuals, businesses and corporations. And, while his business has grown to one of the most respected firms in the area, he has grown his business by investing his time and energy to grow the Coast.

Locally, he has served the community through the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club and was a member of the board and an officer of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. For the past two years, he has provided pro bono services during a financially challenging time for the Chamber. His firm also helps numerous other non-profits in the community, including schools and athletic teams, and has been a sponsor of the girls softball team since 1982.

Regionally, he is a member of Coast 21, and has served the Mississippi Gulf Coast Economic Development Council as Treasurer since 1987. He has been involved in supporting several referendums including the move to defeat term limits and equal representation for South Mississippi on the College Board. He has also managed several local political and issue-oriented campaigns, including the 1990 Gaming referendum and Gene Taylor for Congress Campaigns in 1989 and 1990.

From 1982-1990, he served as a Board Member to the Hancock County United Way and is a past President of that organization. When he saw the benefits of consolidating the Hancock County efforts with that of other coastal counties into the United Way of South Mississippi, program to build an Auditorium and Fine Arts Building; and, completed major additions and renovations to the High School, two elementary schools and Second Street Elementary. Little did he know more than 12 years ago, that Second Street Elementary would become home to Hancock County's first Boys and Girls Club, an effort he spear-headed and led this year, to provide healthy and enriched activities for all children in Hancock County. He also serves as Chairman of Gaits to Success, a therapeutic riding center.

This year, he is serving as Chairman of Partners for Stennis, a regional catalyst for the enhancement of education, quality of life and economic opportunities.

Over the past year, he has played a key leadership role in the revitalization of this organization, and is largely responsible for spear-heading an effort to establish a pilot education program to inject the he served as the first chairman in 1989. He continued to serve the United Way as a Board member from 1990-1993 and again as President in 2000 and 2001. His commitment to United Way continues as he recruits new leaders to play pivotal roles in fund development and programming.

From 1987-1992, he served as a member of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board, and provided leadership as secretary and president.

During this time, the system completed a building resources of Stennis Space Center into the schools in the three county area of Mississippi and one parish in Louisiana.

He has played a major leadership role in the development of three strategic plans for the area, working with the Executive Council of Stennis Space Center, Partners for Stennis and the business leaders of Hancock County.

Another year and an age to remember

"Life is a habit that is at its best worn long."

-- From "Whose child is this?" Willy Murke, April 1930

Last week was an anniversary, mine, and I would like to commemorate it with some remarks besides, "Why, when I was your age. ..."

The fact that another year had attached itself to my age was brought home to me a few weeks earlier. It was the occasion of my granddaughter's wedding. Several factors intruded so that I couldn't attend. On the day of the wedding, I thought about my granddaughter, regretting my not being there. I realized, however, that undoubtedly standing beside her would be my son resplendent in a broad 'I-am-the-father-of-this-beautiful-women' smile. It made me feel better and I let my thoughts go back to when I gave my equally beautiful daughter away in her marriage umpteen years ago. In a sense, a sort of convoluted déjà vu.

But perhaps my feelings were not all that unique. Years ago, I became acquainted with a woman who had written a book which, for its kind, was becoming a national best seller. In fact when I met her, she had just returned from a national tour promoting the book. I was very impressed, I had never met a real author before and was full of questions on the book and what it was about. She told me.

"Parenting? I never heard of it. Is that a noun or a verb?"

She laughed, "Before I wrote the book, no one had heard of it. It's not in the dictionary, I made it up to describe a process in life, a maturing progression we all have to go through to be complete as a person."

I looked a little blank. "You mean a person can't be mature unless he is a parent?"

"There's a little more to it than that. The person has gone through the whole bit

East Hancock teachers win big for their school

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Three East Hancock Elementary teachers made history last week, along with thousands of dollars for their school.

EHE teachers Joan J. Breazeale, Ann Randle, and Nancy N. Ratcliff - along with Nancy L. Hunter of Biloxi's Gorenflo Elementary School and Susan B. Spiers of South Side Lower Elementary School in Picayune - became 2004 recipients of the Leo W. Seal Teacher Recognition Awards last week in a gala luncheon in their honor at the Great Southern Club in Gulfport.

"This is our ninth year" for the Leo Seal Awards, Hancock Bank spokeswoman Vicki Slade said before the luncheon. "I don't think we've ever had more than two teachers from the same school win in the same year, so (having three win) that's a big deal."

At the luncheon, each teacher received a pewter apple designed exclusively for Hancock Bank by John Cannon of Ballard Pewter,

You may have thought you heard it all when the Mississippi Plant Selections Committee chose the Mini Charm tomato as the first vegetable to win the award. Now the committee has chosen Purple Ruffles basil as the first herb to win the Mississippi Medallion Award.

Purple Ruffles basil is as pretty as a coleus in the flowerbed, and it also makes a delicious addition to many culinary dishes. Whether you pronounce it "bay-zil" or "baa-zil," we can agree on one thing: freshly torn Purple Ruffles basil mixed with juicy tomatoes, olive oil and garlic is a true feast when spooned over hot pasta.

Besides having extraordinary taste, Purple Ruffles

Teacher's Pets

The Saint Clare school fifth grade class recently ended a year long inter-generational exchange with their new friends, the Dunbar Village elders. The students collected money for the Village pets by hosting a bake sale and the students also presented a hibiscus plant to be planted in memory of the year. The students all agreed it was a great experience filled with fun, friendship and laughter.

Adams, Berthold named national award winners

The United States Achievement Academy announced last week that Douglas Adams from Bay St. Louis has been named a United State National Award Winner in Mathematics; and that Andrew Berthold IV from Waveland has been named a United State National Award Winner in Honor Roll and Mathematics.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes fewer than 10% of all American high school students.

Douglas Adams, who attends Bay High School, was nominated for this national award by Ms. Julie Meert, a math teacher at the school.

Andrew Berthold IV, who attends Bay Middle School, was nominated for this national award by Joan Osco, a teacher at the school.

Both students will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history.

Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy. The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Douglas is the son of Doug and Dianne Adams from Bay St. Louis, MS. The grandparents are Helene Adams of Waveland, MS and Ollie Mae Yarborough of Waveland, MS.

Andrew Berthold IV is the son of Gary & Cheryl Tenney from Waveland, MS. The grandparents are Cora Cosby of Waveland, MS and Mae Yarborough of

Congratulations 2004 Hancock Bank Leo W. Seal Teacher Recognition Award Winners

Five $1,000 grants were recently awarded to the following South Mississippi teachers for classroom projects. These teachers were selected based upon the application of teaching and leadership skills in their classroom.

The winners include:

- Joan J. Breazeale, East Hancock Elementary School, Amusement Park Physics
- Nancy L. Hunter, Gorenflo Elementary School, Connections
- Ann Randle, East Hancock Elementary School, Arty Facts: An Art Education Program
- Nancy N. Ratcliff, East Hancock Elementary School, Gator Publishing Company

Funded by Hancock Bank, these awards were created to accomplish two objectives - to recognize teachers' excellence and their innumerable contributions to the Coast and to support teachers by providing funding for projects in their classrooms. Started in 1994, the endowment fund is managed as a permanent fund of the Gulf Coast Community Foundation's "Pat Santucci Friends of Public Education" program.

Winners are chosen by an independent selection committee whose members are not affiliated with Hancock Bank. Applications for nominations for the year 2005 awards will be available by October 1, 2004, at all public school offices and Hancock Bank offices in Pearl River, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Laman, Forrest and Jefferson Davis counties or from the Gulf Coast Community Foundation by calling 228-436-4441.

Views -- An age to remember

of parentage: being married, having a child, and being responsible for the child's growth to adulthood.

"So if I don't get married and never have children, I couldn't mature?"

"That's perhaps a little strong, but yes. At least to become mature in the limited fashion that I'm defining maturity. It's a maturity that consists of a person becoming more aware of the their own self and getting a fuller understanding of why that person does many of the things they do. A sort of completion to the admonition, 'Know thyself.'"

I was starting to look blank again.

"Let's say you get married and in the normal course of events the two of you have a child. It's great and you both are filled with the whole wonder of it. But the baby doesn't stay a baby. It begins to grow and develop a personality and wants things and does things. You as a parent react to these actions in ways that you think are helpful to the child's development. In other words, you act as a parent."

I nodded understandingly.

"But that's being a parent and is not what I mean by parenting."

My blank look slipped over my face again.

"As you go through the actions of being a parent, you see the very fragile relationship your child has to the actions of the world around him and see your actions as a parent trying to protect him. However, in doing so, you realize your child is undergoing experiences similar to those of your own childhood. Only now you start to see the recall of your childhood experiences with the more experienced eye of an adult rather than the limited egocentric eyes of a child.

"This is the whole point of what I call parenting in my book. Because by reliving those old events with the advantage of your adult experiences, you begin to understand how those same actions affected you as a child. You start to understand how they shaped your reactions at the time as well as your thoughts and outlook on things."

I was starting to nod. She pressed on.

"It's a broad concept that doesn't come all at once, although portions of it does. It develops gradually with you as your child grows older.

"For example, By your continuing interaction with the growing child, you start to see your own parents in a new light. You begin to appreciate that they were once young like yourself when they had you as a child. You see and understand why they did many of the things they did. You begin to realize that they made good decisions and bad mistakes just as any person would their age. If instead of one you have two children, you see their interactions with one another as normal sibling rivalry and you in turn start to understand your own relationship with your own sister or brother.

"There is no real completion in the parenting process. Some people go farther along than others. But essentially, it is you as a person growing more mature because you have gained a fuller understanding of yourself, of why you do things and where your values originated."

What I have given here is what I remember of our long ago conversation. I am sorry to say that I never got around to reading her book, especially since the years have not been kind to her original concept. Hearing the word parenting now one hears a word that has been greatly diluted from what she originally meant. But I believe her original sense of the word is still valid and found it to be true as I watched my son and my granddaughter.

I hope that our personal family chain goes on and that my son (and my granddaughter) will find similar understandings of themselves in their progeny that follow.

Garden -- Purple Ruffles

basil is incredibly easy to grow. Not only does it add grace to the herb garden or tomato planting, but the numerous shapes and sizes make excellent additions to the perennial garden, shrub border or container garden. It actually partners well with two of this year's Mississippi Medallion award winners -- the Mini Charm tomato and the Port Gibson Pink verbenas.

Purple Ruffles basil can be tucked into unused garden corners, displayed among vegetables, edged along a flower garden or grown in mixed containers where its handsome foliage contrasts with bouquets of colorful flowers.

Purple Ruffles basil asks for nothing more in the garden than full sun and well-drained soil. Prepare the soil by spreading 3 to 4 inches of organic matter and 1 pound per 100 square feet of a slow release, 5-10-5 fertilizer, and till to a depth of 8 to 10 inches.

Set transplants 18 to 24 inches apart. They will grow to around 2 feet tall and wide. Water and apply a layer of mulch. Purple Ruffles basil thrives in our warm summer weather and excels in fall plantings as well.

Keep the Purple Ruffles watered and harvested and flower buds pinched for a long crop. Harvest just as the flower buds are forming for the most concentrated oils, flavor and fragrance. Apply a light application of the above fertilizer every four to six weeks, or after harvest.

Cut or pinch Purple Ruffles just above a leaf or pair of leaves, removing no more than one-fourth of the plant. This leaves enough foliage to keep the plant healthy and looking good in the landscape.

Simple air-drying produces tasty Purple Ruffles basil for use all winter. Rinse the leaves in cool water and gently shake off extra moisture. When thoroughly dry, tie a handful of stems firmly into a bundle. Place the bundle in a paper bag, gather the top of the bag around the stems and tie again. Label, then hang the bag in a dry place where the temperature doesn't get above 80 degrees. After two to four weeks, the herbs should be dry and crumbly.

Once basil is dried, store it in an airtight container in a cool, dark cupboard. Keep the leaves whole if possible to preserve the oils; crush or grind only when using them. For a fresh homemade pesto try:

1/2 cup of extra virgin olive oil
2 cloves of garlic
2 cups of fresh Purple Ruffles basil leaves
1/2 cup of parsley
1/4 cup of toasted pine nuts
1/2 cup of Romano or Parmesan cheese
Place all ingredients in a food processor and puree. For best flavor, use immediately.
Garden centers are loaded with Purple Ruffles transplants just waiting for your visit this weekend.

Teachers -- Seal Awards

year. The teachers selected to win the honors went through an intensive selection process. They were elected based on past and proposed curriculum-enhancing classroom teaching applications.

Implementing Breazeale's "Amusement Park Physics" will help East Hancock Elementary students observe, examine, analyze, apply, and demonstrate principles of force, mass, velocity, gravity, and acceleration using familiar toys like Hot Wheels cars and tracks and will advance students' understanding of physics through hands-on application of experiment results to redesign and build functioning scale amusement park rides from specialized building blocks.

Developed by Randle to supplement art education in the school, "Arty Facts" will help East Hancock educators complement state mandated curriculum by offering students a virtual palette of cultural literacy as students consider famous artists and artworks to analyze, evaluate, and incorporate the use of visual images in communicating ideas and as students create original art for on-site display with works by noted masters and regional artists.

Ratcliff's "Gator Publishing Company" will afford East Hancock Elementary a fully furnished classroom writing and publishing center dedicated to helping students meet Mississippi language arts benchmarks and to teaching and assessing first- and second-grade students' interactive writing - a collaborative reading instruction process in which students write, edit, and publish together by considering all facets of language, grammar, context, and layout.

Established in 1994 and funded by Hancock Bank, the Leo W. Seal awards laud teaching excellence and individual contributions to South Mississippi education and support teachers by funding innovative classroom projects to enhance the value of students' educational experience. The awards commemorate the leadership and achievements of the late Leo W. Seal, Sr., Hancock Bank president from 1932 until his death in 1963, and his son, current Hancock Holding Company chairman Leo W. Seal, Jr., in facilitating economic growth and educational opportunities across the region. The Gulf Coast Community Foundation (GCCF) manages the endowment as a permanent fund of the GCCF's Pat Santucci Friends of Public Education program.

Global Trends in Mothers Day Celebrations

Americans aren't alone in our matriarchal celebrations

BY PUSHPIKA FREITAS,
Director, MarketPlace:
Handwork of India

The way we Americans prepare for Mothers Day is very similar across the nation; we take time to reflect on the ways our mothers have helped us and what they have taught us over the years, and we give our mothers gifts as a kind of 'thank you' for all they do that is not always recognized day to day.

Many other cultures also have times to recognize mothers. Some countries, such as Denmark, Finland, Belgium, Turkey, Italy and Australia, celebrate Mother's Day on the same day and in the same way as we Americans do, while others have alternate ways of honoring mothers that provide interesting vantage points on women's changing roles around the world.

In Spain and Portugal, for example, Mother's Day is celebrated on December 8th, the day of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Spanish and Portuguese families attend church services to honor Mary, mother of Jesus in addition to honoring their own mothers.

In France, Mother's Day is celebrated the last Sunday in May. It is not just celebrated by the immediate family (mother, father, and children) but by the extended family as well. After a special meal, a cake shaped like a bouquet of flowers is presented to the mother.

In Japan, an art contest is held for young children where they can submit a drawing of their mother. Once every four years the drawings of all winners are included in an exhibit called "My Mother" that travels throughout the world. The idea is not only to honor one's mother with a fine drawing, but also to demonstrate to other cultures how Mother's Day is celebrated in Japan.

In India, there is a holiday called Guru Purnima, which in some quarters is becoming an equivalent to Mothers Day in the United States. This holiday is a time for people to honor the gurus (mentors) in their lives and dates back to the time when many young people went to live with gurus who helped them develop from young people into mature adults.

Today in India, the practice of going to live with a guru for one's education is no longer common. Although traditionally the young students relied on the male gurus for direction and support, now it is not uncommon for women in India to rely instead on one another for advice and guidance, much as we do in the United States.

An interesting take on Guru Purnima can be found among the many women artisans in Mumbai, India affiliated with MarketPlace: Handwork of India (www.marketplaceindia.com). MarketPlace is a non-profit, fair trade organization dedicated to improving the quality of life for women in India by providing economic opportunities, training, and education in leadership.

Collectives of women artisans organized by MarketPlace create the cross-cultural handmade fashions that reach American consumers through MarketPlace's internet and catalog sales (for more information call 800-726-8905). Because these women artisans - nearly all mothers - work together to make decisions as to how their profits will move their collective efforts forward, there is no guru for them to look to and honor during the Guru Purnima festival. Instead, they all share the honor, because they all depend on each other in order to help them build a better life.

The Guru Purnima festival in India is just one example of how evolving traditions reflect the increasing importance of women in societies all over the world. Changing Mother's Day traditions indicate that the role of women is changing on a global scale.

Art With a Heart at HMC

STIEFFEL'S WORK SELECTED- Bay St. Louis artist Ray Stieffel holds a print of a familiar Coast scene, a shrimp boat gracefully gliding across the Gulf. This local art will be featured on the cover of Hancock Medical Center's soon-to-be-published cookbook, Cooking With HMC. Members of the hospital's cookbook committee selected Stieffel's work from nearly 300 pieces of local art decorating the walls of Hancock Medical Center. Standing, clockwise from left, are Dale Belham, RD., Micheline Smyth, RN, Brenda Hoffman, RN, Patty Splers, RN, Mollie Varnado, RN., (seated) Theresa Bourgeois, Stieffel and Michelle Ladner, RN. Cookbooks will feature 650 recipes collected from HMC employees, volunteers, physicians and friends. Publication date is early June. Proceeds from the books ($15 each) will benefit the HMC Foundation.

Kiln plans celebration for 52nd annual National Day of Prayer

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Local organizers are inviting county residents to unite on May 6 on the front porch at Kiln Library for the National Day of Prayer Rally. The one-hour event will begin at noon with special music by local artists at the Hwy. 43 Library. For those who may have time limitations, box lunches will be available.

"I can't imagine a time when we have been in greater need to publicly demonstrate our desire to pray," said Mike Wells, Chairman of the Kiln National Day of Prayer Event. "With our Nation at war wrestling enemies both abroad and at home, the attack upon our homes and families, and the approaching national election, there is a sense of desperation and uncertainty. In the midst of these tumultuous events, it is important that we stand together on the common ground of faith, asking God for His providence and blessings."

"Though we are just a small community, our prayers matter to God" Said Wells. "The problems we are experiencing here in Hancock County are a reflection of what is happening in cities and towns from coast to coast. If we will simply put aside our denominational and cultural differences and come together to pray, I fully believe a dramatic change is in store for our community and this nation."

The National Day of Prayer tradition dates back to 1775 and became a yearly event when President Harry S. Truman signed a joint resolution by Congress declaring celebration. President Ronald Reagan amended the Truman resolution by designating the first Thursday in May as the annual National Day of Prayer.

McKnight selected for Licensure Assessment Panel

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Hancock High School history teacher Kelley McKnight recently served on a validation/ standard setting panel for several teacher licensure assessments that were developed by the Educational Testing Service as part of the Praxis Series.

As a panelist, McKnight reported to Baltimore, Maryland where she was one of 19 educators responsible for reviewing the proposed tests for relevance of test content and recommending a required passing standard on the test. McKnight, who received National Board Certification earlier this school year, was selected by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education to participate because of her vast knowledge and expertise in the area of educational testing.

Facts About The JORDAN

Copyright © 1980 John A. Lehti, National Representative: Dail Advertising Service, P.O. Box 10278, Goldsboro, NC 27532

THE POWER OF THE JORDAN!

THE JORDAN IS THE MOST IMPORTANT RIVER IN PALESTINE AND, HISTORICALLY, OF GREAT IMPORTANCE IN THE RELIGIONS OF JUDAISM AND CHRISTIANITY. ITS LENGTH IS LISTED AS ONE HUNDRED AND FOUR MILES BUT, BECAUSE OF ITS TORTUOUS WINDINGS, THE RIVER TRAVERSES AT LEAST TWO HUNDRED MILES BEFORE ENDING UP IN THE DEAD SEA. IT ALSO STANDS ALONE, AMONG THE RIVERS OF THE WORLD, DUE TO THE FACT THAT THE GREATER PART OF ITS COURSE RUNS BELOW THE LEVEL OF THE OCEAN! AT ITS START, THE JORDAN IS ONE THOUSAND FEET ABOVE THE LEVEL OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, BUT BY THE TIME IT ENTERS THE DEAD SEA, IT IS ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY FEET BELOW SEA LEVEL! THE BIBLICAL ASSOCIATIONS WITH THE RIVER ARE MANY. JACOB CROSSED IT (GEN. 32:10, 23:16) WHERE THE JORDAN AND THE MOUTH OF THE JABOK RIVER MEET. THE ISRAELITES UNDER JOSHUA REQUIRED A MIRACLE TO CROSS THIS RIVER, IN THE VICINITY OF JERICHO, DUE TO THE FAST-FLOWING CURRENT (JOSH. 3:1-17, 4:1-24). THE FLEEING MIDIANITES, PURSUED BY SIDON, 7:24; 8:4, 8) AND, OF COURSE, ELIJAH AND ELISHA HAD TO CROSS THE JORDAN BEFORE ELIJAH'S MOMENTOUS ASCENDANCY IN A CHARIOT OF FIRE! NAAMAN, THE SYRIAN, WASHED SEVEN TIMES IN ITS WATERS, AT THE DIRECTION OF THE PROPHET AND, LATER, JOHN THE BAPTIST BAPTIZED JESUS CHRIST IN THE SAME HISTORICAL WATERS! (MATT. 3:13-15).

Greater Love No One Has

Standing 5-feet, 11-inches, and weighing in at 180, Pat Tillman drew very little interest from football coaches in high school. In fact, they ignored his athletic assets until he played his way into contention only by overachieving.

Bumping a step up in college as an undersized 202-pound linebacker, he became the PAC-10 defensive player of the year. That was a bit impressive for the college scene, but hardly worth considering for any NFL team.

Naturally, the NFL considered him quite undersized at 202. Nonetheless, the Arizona Cardinals took a chance at drafting him, and soon saw that "It's not the dog that's in the fight; it's the fight that's in the dog."

And this dog got even feistier, chiseling his body by diet, weights and hard, smart play.

Pat unexpectedly led the Cardinals in tackles as a safety in the 2000 NFL season and went on to scale the NFL Mt. Everest and establish himself as a genuine star, though he never saw himself as a star. Au contraire, he avoided the limelight wherever possible and studiously practiced self-effacement.

As so many others were, his life was jerked around violently by the horrid events of 9/11. Pat's humility and totally unassuming approach to life led him to affirm that freedom isn't free by joining the Army Special Forces.

I have not read or heard this anywhere, but, looking at the photo of Pat Tillman in his Ranger gear, one gets the stark impression that this life face, game face, battle face is really a transplant of an ancient Trojan to our time.

Much to the chagrin of his agent and others who tried to talk him out of it, now he would be paid $18,000 a year, leaving behind a glamorous NFL career which paid $1.2 million a year. Sure sounds like a movie aborning.

But all the interviews, book and movie deals offered him were turned down abruptly. After all, in Pat's mind, he was doing no more than the guy or gal who left a pedestrian, meagerly-paying job to join the military.

Self-effacing to the max, Pat never put himself in the class of a headliner or star, let alone a celebrity. He felt he owed it to his country to give back some of what it had given him, mainly freedom, security and opportunity.

Of course, it is true that many a lass and lad from everyday ranks of life have given proportionately the same as Pat, surrendering their personal freedom and convenience for the higher cause of everyone's freedom.

However, Pat's case is obviously so special because it so embodies the American Dream which most Americans treasure and pursue. After having scaled the pinnacle of the American Dream, Pat gave it all up completely, risking his life that his fellow and world citizens might enjoy theirs securely.

We often hear talk of jocks: athletes who qualify as very manly in their demeanor and in the prosecution of their difficult activity. At a higher level, some jocks are described as studs, the very epitome of manhood and virility.

Trojan, Pat Tillman went them one better, demonstrating beyond the shadow of a doubt that the toughest men are not those who do Sunday battle on the gridiron. Rather, the true stud is one who has the guts to forgo all that is free, secure, convenient and enjoyable for the real risk of dying for peace.

Adoring, admiring women are not the only ones emotionally smitten by Pat's deep faith, sensitivity and unconditional generosity toward all his fellow citizens. Men of every ilk and self-styled nonsense toughness are equally impressed with a stud true-blue beyond their wildest imaginings.

Without any doubt, Pat would pooh-pooh the very idea that what he did is at all reminiscent of what Mother Teresa of Calcutta did. Yet, in a different sphere of life, our young hero did exactly that, giving all there was to give.

For most of us, the paltry acts of self-denial which we display during the seasons of Advent or Lent, and the frequently self-serving generosity which we show to family and friends pale before the sacrifice of Pat Tillman.

With a buoyant feeling of wholesome goodness, we sometimes pause to reflect on our own virtue after doing something noble and generous. Now we can be more sober in our assessment by comparing our generosity to Pat's.

Try to imagine the profound change in attitude of family members, friends and people at large if we could muster the courage to be completely selfless in our self-denial and generosity. Everyone would be wonderfully at ease, not looking for any ulterior or devious motives in what we say and do.

Imagine how inspired would be the lives shared by people in a family setting if two or more, not to mention all, of them were suffused with unselfish thoughts, words and, above all, unassuming generosity.

Parents, teachers, counselors, evangelists, politicians, entertainers - on the Sunday gridiron as well - and people everywhere on life's stage can take a highly critical cue from the indomitable, generous spirit of Pat Tillman.

In his inimitable fashion, the Master himself put it all in perspective: "No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends." (John 15:13)

The "Word" for the Week
The World to Come

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

While I was in the army, one of the senior officers, for whom I worked, told me about being struck by lightning.

He was sitting in his office and a bolt of lightning came through the window. The next thing he saw was his body lying on the floor next to his desk. He was moving up and away from his body. He could look down and see himself lying on the floor.

The next thing he knew was that he was brought back to life! Noted film critic Michael Medved says that the movies are out of touch on this same count.

They reject the notion of any life after death. But the research shows, says Medved, that many people have had near death experiences and that these experiences are remarkably similar.

Well, the Bible has always taught that there is life after death. But for the Bible, the big question is who is in charge of this after-life? The book of Hebrews in the Bible talks about this. It makes a comparison between Christ and the angels.

It explains that Christ is much greater than the angels. It explains how great a salvation Christ has purchased by His death on the cross.

The question is then asked, "If the word spoken through angels proved unalterable, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense, how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?" (Hebrews 2:2-3).

Then Hebrews 2:5 says, "He did not subject to angels the world to come, concerning which we are now speaking." The point is that this talk about Christ and the angels has to do with the world to come. Not only so, Christ is in charge of this after-life.

If you do not trust in the death of Christ as the only sacrifice for your sins, life after death will be unexpectedly horrible!

James Michael Tyler

Checking in with James Michael Tyler

By John Crook
 © Zap2it

James Michael Tyler can attest to how important being in the right place at the right time can be in any actor's career.

The struggling young actor was managing a Hollywood coffee shop in 1992 when he was hired to play an unnamed coffee-shop manager in a new NBC series called "Friends," mainly because he could work a cappuccino machine.

"It was sort of like art imitating life," he laughs. "The week before, I had let a hairstylist friend try bleaching my hair, and the 'Friends' producers thought it gave me an interesting 'downtown' look for the character."

A bucolic childhood in Mississippi - where his father was a small-town sheriff - ended when his parents were killed in a car wreck and he went to Anderson, S.C., to live with a sister.

"I had just turned 12 and had to grow up pretty quickly," Tyler says. "It taught me never to take anything in life for granted."

Soon, he became fascinated with nearby rocks and caves, and earned a degree in geology from Clemson University. Limited career options helped lead him to the University of Georgia, where he earned a master's degree in drama. Tyler says, "I didn't want to spend five years on an oil platform in the Gulf of Mexico."

He was thrilled when his "Friends" character was given a name - Gunther - in the second season, plus a chance to shine in a memorable episode in which Gunther desperately tries to escape from a dull party Monica is giving.

That's why he couldn't watch as they recently tore down the Central Perk set on the "Friends" soundstage. "I had to just walk away," he says. "That set had just been too big a part of my life to watch it go."

Birthdate: May 28, 1962.
Birthplace: Winona, Miss.
Family ties: Father was a retired Air Force captain; mother was a homemaker; two brothers; two sisters.

'While You Were Out' gives sparkle

By Kate O'Hare

Lisa Leslie may be tall, beautiful and a top player with the WNBA's Los Angeles Sparks, but she's still her mother's little girl. On Friday, May 7, with the help of The Learning Channel's "While You Were Out," Leslie works with designer Mark Montano, carpenters Ali Barone and Jason Cameron and host Evan Farmer, to transform her mom Chris' kitchen into a nature-inspired haven.

"Lisa's mom is six-four," Farmer says. "She was born to be tall. They have the greatest relationship. Lisa bought her mom's house for her so she could be close to her. Literally, she's five, 10 minutes away. It's a very close family."

"When we did the show, it was the anniversary of Chris losing her husband, whom she was just crazy about. So that was the reason Lisa wanted to do something special for her mother. That time of year was, for obvious reasons, very tough. Lisa wanted to do something to take her mom's mind off it, let her know that she's loved. "It was a pretty wild design, but she loved it."

Farmer claims that there was a little time for some one-on-one. "I don't like to brag," he says. "I'm not a tall guy, but I slammed on the woman. I was skying over her, left-handed, right-handed. We even raised the net up a little bit, because I wanted to let her feel like she was in charge. But when it came down to it, I was all over it."

Reminded of the humiliation he suffered after being tackled by Washington Redskins player LaVar Arrington in a previous episode, Farmer fesses up. "Busted! Actually, we didn't do one-on-one. We all threw on the Sparks jerseys, and she let us try to play basketball around her."

Fans brace themselves to say goodbye

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Thursday, May 6, 2004: Could "Friends" fans BE dreading that day any harder?

On that evening, the Emmy-winning sitcom about six close-knit New Yorkers ends its top-rated 10-season run with an hour-long episode, preceded by an hour of classic scenes from the series.

This finale is expected to concentrate mainly on two events: the birth of Monica and Chandler's (Courteney Cox Arquette, Matthew Perry) baby and a high-stakes decision for star-crossed lovers Ross and Rachel (David Schwimmer, Jennifer Aniston) on the eve of her departure for Paris, where she has accepted a new job.

"Friends" co-creators and executive producers Marta Kauffman and David Crane promise fans one thing: This final episode, which they wrote together, will not be a cloying departure from the sitcom they have come to know and love over the past decade.

"It remains true to the show, and I honestly think it is one of our very best episodes," Kauffman says.

"It's not an anomaly, some weird high-concept diversion," Crane adds. "It feels like the show, like what people have been tuning into for the past ten years."

For Kauffman and Crane, Thursday's broadcast of the "Friends" finale will mark the last stage in their long goodbye to what they suspect may be a once-in-a-lifetime professional experience. The last episode, written and filmed over three weeks before an invited audience in January, was followed by a wrap party that was massive even by Hollywood standards, with nearly 1,000 people in attendance. Then, during the ensuing weeks, the team oversaw the final post-production and editing of the episode.

"But I just said to David last night, 'I think (Friday) May 7, is going to be the hardest day of all, because it truly will all be over then,'" Kauffman admits.

"There's a feeling of closure with each step," Crane adds, "and this one, seeing it actually on television instead of in an editing room, is going to make it all seem more real to us."

Not surprisingly, rehearsing and filming the final episode was an emotional experience for the entire creative team.

"It was three weeks of tears," Kauffman says. "Every time we did something, no matter how small, it would strike us. 'Oh, my God, this is the last time I'm going to have a bagel on Thursday morning while watching a scene.' Everything was filled with meaning. We shot the last coffee-house scene on the next to last week and the actors could barely get through it."

James Michael Tyler, the unofficial seventh Friend in his role as Central Perk barista Gunther, was front and center during those moments.

"Those scenes really took their toll, especially for the makeup people," he recalls. "There were a lot of tears flowing and the director would call 'action,' then have to cut because someone would already be crying. But it was a feeling of triumph mixed with loss, because we knew we had been a part of something pretty special for these last ten years."

"It was all just very heightened, especially the very last week," Crane says.

During its long run, "Friends" entered the pop culture not only on a superficial level. Aniston's first-season hairstyle, dubbed "the Rachel," became the style of choice for many twentysomething women - but viewers also adopted the way some of the characters spoke, including Chandler's eccentric habit of accenting the "wrong" word in a phrase or leaving a sentence unfinished to make a sarcastic point ("And you're telling me this BECAUSE...?").

Kauffman and Crane insist this "Chandler Bing-ing of America," as one academic has dubbed it, totally blew past their own radar.

"Oddly, that didn't really register with us at all at the time," Kauffman says. "You write the show and you want the characters to be funny and specific, and then the actors bring their own spin to it, but as far as how the rest of the world responds to that, all you can do is go, hmrm, that's kind of interesting."

"We didn't set out to create a kind of lexicon," Crane says. "I think, actually, that it kind of evolved organically out of us as well as the other writers in the room and the actors themselves. I wasn't really aware of it at all until one day someone I knew said to me, 'Oh, so you're the reason my kids talk this way!' I had no conscious awareness until then."

The lavish wrap party Warner Bros. threw for the show was highlighted by the cast reading the first scene of the pilot episode as well as the announcement that the Warner studios' Stage 24, where the sitcom was filmed, has been renamed "the Friends Stage."

But Kauffman saw meaningful metaphors everywhere she turned on that emotional night, she says.

"There was a little Hello Kitty doll that used to sit on the wardrobe person's podium, and it was stolen, I believe it was two seasons ago," she says. "There were ransom notes, some jokes, but it never had been returned."

"One of the women went to the bar at the party to get a drink and the doll was sitting on the bar. Whoever had stolen it had returned it, and I just saw this meaningful gesture that we were experiencing a full circle here."

'Evil' star shared stage with LaPaglia

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q Please tell me about the star of USA Network's new series "Touching Evil." Did he play Charles Main in the mid-'80s miniseries "North and South"? And as to that same miniseries, was the main theme music for it written by the composer who does the music for "The West Wing"? -Kim Fall via e-mail.

A "Touching Evil" star Jeffrey Donovan had nothing to do with the "North and South" trilogy (that was Lewis Smith as Charles Main), but he has an impressive theater resume, including co-starring with Anthony LaPaglia ("Without a Trace") and Allison Janney ("The West Wing") in a Tony-winning Broadway revival of "A View From the Bridge."

The Massachusetts native attended the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, then got a master's degree from New York University. His TV credits include the HBO movie "When Trumpets Fade," as well as recurring roles on "Spin City," "The Beat" and "The Pretender," plus guest shots on "Millennium," "Law & Order" and "Homicide: Life on the Street."

Jeffrey Donovan

Now in his mid-30s, Donovan made his feature film debut in the indie film "Throwing Down," followed by Barry Levinson's "Sleepers," "Bait," "Book of Shadows: Blair Witch 2" and the recent "Sam & Joe." Donovan is single and lives in Los Angeles.

Emmy and Oscar winner Bill Conti ("The Right Stuff") composed the music for all three of the "North and South" miniseries, but your question about that is understandable. Both Conti and "West Wing" composer

W.G. Snuffy Walden tapped into a national musical tradition that has its roots in the compositions of Aaron Copland ("Appalachian Spring," "Rodeo," "Billy the Kid"), among others, to produce scores that immediately evoke a vivid sense of Americana.

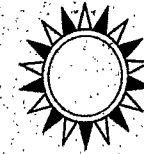

Q Is Leah Remini of "The King of Queens" pregnant? -Bob from Baltimore.

A Yes, the 33-year-old actress and her husband, actor Angelo Pagan, expect their first child to arrive in June.

Q I have watched "Cold Case" since it started and could swear that in the beginning there was another detective (not Valens) working alongside Rush. My husband insists that I am wrong. -Corinne Strong, Lyndonville, NY.

A It's your husband who is getting cold on this one. A CBS publicist for "Cold Case" says actor Justin Chambers appeared as Detective Chris Lassing in the first two or three episodes before leaving the show to pursue other prospects. At that point, Danny Pino was brought in to join the show as Scotty Valens.

A '10.5' earthquake rocks the West Coast in NBC miniseries

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Many dramas have revolved around earthquakes, so a new one faces two immediate questions: How effective is the quake, and how good are the stories around it?

The new NBC miniseries "10.5" fares quite well on both counts. Airing Sunday and Monday, May 2-3, the thriller actually serves up several earthquakes ... including one in the first five minutes that lays waste to Seattle's landmark Space Needle. Not surprisingly, much of the action is centered in California, the state most associated with seismic activity.

San Francisco pays a price as tremors cause the Golden Gate Bridge to collapse and send cars plummeting into the waters below. Monitoring the situation from the White House, the U.S. president (played by Beau Bridges) hopes that's the worst of it; not a chance, when the drama's special-effects team also has the chance to "wreck" the San Andreas Fault.

Kim Delaney also stars as a scientist who predicts where and when catastrophe will strike next, and devises a radical plan to stop what is destined to "change the geography of Southern California," as she puts it. She works with an ex-boyfriend (David Cubitt, "Turks") and the chief (Fred Ward) of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Elsewhere, two doctors - played by Dule Hill ("The West Wing") and Ivan Sergei ("Crossing Jordan") - treat the injured.

Among the many victims is California's governor (Rebecca Jenkins), trapped in her demolished office as her asthmatic teenage daughter (Kaley Cuoco, "8 Simple Rules") and estranged husband (John Schneider, "Smallville") reach a new accord while facing perils in the wilderness.

After playing Richard Nixon in the 1995 TV movie "Kissinger and Nixon," Bridges had the opportunity to shape a chief executive from the ground up in "10.5." He reflects, "The obvious thing that's so frustrating is that you're dealing with life-and-death decisions when you're nowhere near the trenches. On top of that, he ends up choosing to send his boyhood friend (the FEMA director, played by Ward) into the mouth of the dragon."

In portraying a president who eventually orders the evacuation of the entire West Coast, Bridges modeled his performance on "the best leaders I've ever seen close-up: my dad (the late actor Lloyd Bridges) and Coach John Wooden (under whom Beau played basketball at UCLA). Hopefully, I got a lot of their sensibilities into this. Even though this president is confronted with a tremendous challenge, I wanted him to keep his composure as best he could - realizing that if he lost it, all of the people around him would not be able to draw the best out of themselves. Also, I kept hearing my coach's words in my head: 'If you do your best, you really can't lose.'"

A born-and-bred Southern Californian, Bridges has experienced his share of actual earthquakes, so he didn't have to reach far to unearth related emotions. "With movies and miniseries like this," he reasons, "it's also why we all flock to roller coasters. It's a safe way to test your mettle and your psyche; how would you feel if something like this really happened? I don't think this pretends to be anything profound, but I have ridden out a few major earthquakes, and they truly are spiritual awakenings."

Bridges and Cuoco don't share any scenes in "10.5," since she spent most of her time outdoors doing her own stunts, particularly in a sequence that nearly buries her and Schneider inside a car. "I'd cry all day," the young actress concedes. "I was scared to death. That car really did go under, with John still inside. It was horrible. Everybody asked, 'Do you want a stunt double?,' but I just had to do it."

If she had to be isolated with any of the "10.5" cast, Cuoco is glad "Dukes of Hazzard" alumnus Schneider turned out to be the one. "We really connected," she says. "He is just the coolest guy. We had to work through a lot of stuff, and he would say, 'OK, we're gonna do this together.' He was really supportive, because I knew I'd never done anything like this before. Working on 'Smallville,' he's had that kind of training. I never had one wardrobe change this whole show, which was the worst part. One outfit! I was freaking out."

From "San Francisco" (1936) to "Earthquake" (1974) and beyond, filmmakers have used then-up-to-date techniques to depict Mother Nature's rampages. Visual effects supervisor Lee Wilson brought experience in that area to "10.5," having also worked on the 1999 project "Aftershock: Earthquake in New York" for CBS. "My initial reaction was, 'Aww, another earthquake show?'" Wilson admits. "Then I realized someone else would do it if I didn't, plus it would be a lot cooler to stage a quake on the West Coast, so I decided to give it another shot."

Kim Delaney and David Cubitt star as scientists who try to stop nature from destroying the U.S. West Coast with earthquakes in "10.5," a new NBC miniseries that airs Sunday and Monday.

Photographs, models and computer graphics were combined to show famous sites falling apart. "I went back and looked at the mid-'70s 'Earthquake' movie," Wilson reports, "and some of the stuff still looks pretty cool, and other stuff doesn't hold up as well. Audiences are more sophisticated now, so you just have to go the extra mile ... and scale is everything. Water is the biggest giveaway. If you have the Golden Gate Bridge fall, and it doesn't hit water of the same size and magnitude, it looks like something shot in a kids' wading pool. Nothing is better than being able to do something for real."

In the Spotlight

'Nanny' ingenue comes of age in demanding 'Book of Ruth'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Take it from Nicholle Tom: "The Nanny" was never like this.

Best known to many TV viewers as pretty, pert and placid Maggie Sheffield on that long-running Fran Drescher sitcom, Tom, now 26, finds herself put through a real physical and emotional wringer in the title role of "The Book of Ruth," a CBS movie premiering Sunday, May 2.

Adapted from Jane Hamilton's award-winning first novel (an Oprah Book Club selection), the intense drama casts Tom as Ruth Grey, a good-hearted teenager who has grown up in a toxic home environment. Her mother, Maylene (Christine Lahti), is a gaping black hole of self-pity and despair, drinking heavily and bitterly complaining about the husband who abandoned her years earlier.

What scant attention she can spare her children is lavished on Ruth's brother, Mark (Billy Wickman), a handsome math prodigy with a promising future. Maylene has little use or patience for Ruth, however, whom she treats with casual cruelty.

Ruth eventually finds some measure of happiness by marrying Ruby (Evan Jones of "8 Mile," well cast here), a charming but chronically unemployed, pill-popping boy whose laziness drives Maylene to new disgust. The arrival of Ruth and Ruby's infant son unexpectedly ushers in a more relaxed family mood, but in due course Maylene becomes obsessed with the child, setting into motion new tensions that erupt into appalling violence.

Tom, who says this plum CBS movie role pretty much fell into her lap on the strength of a strong audition she gave, says she knew in advance playing Ruth would be demanding, but she felt up to a challenge. After all, playing shy Maggie on "The Nanny" hadn't always been terribly fulfilling, especially compared to the meaty work her older sister, Heather, was doing weekdays on CBS' "The Young and the Restless."

"I loved 'The Nanny,'" Tom explains, "(and) every once in a while they'd have an episode about Maggie, but I understood that the show was about Fran (Drescher) and I was just one of the kids."

"I did occasionally look over at what my sister was doing, and just wish that I had more to do. In some ('Nanny') episodes, I literally would have one line, then be out the door. That's frustrating, obviously, for any actor, especially after being on a show for six years. And even then, people typecast you from that work."

Still, playing Ruth took its toll, and Tom says she could even feel her troubled character leaking into her own personality.

"I found myself becoming very insecure, because Ruth was so insecure herself," the actress recalls. "I caught myself asking the director more questions than I usually do."

"I was in virtually every single scene, so I'd go to the set and work for, like, 17 hours, a long day, and never really stopping except to eat. There was no time to 'break it' and relax, so I would go to my hotel at night and just collapse."

As for her next project, Tom says she would love to play a serial killer one day, but mainly she just wants to tackle any roles that pose a challenge.

"I did an ice-skating movie ('Ice Angel') where I was playing a man in a woman's body, and that was pretty challenging!" she laughs. "The Book of Ruth' is challenging in a more realistic way, and I think people will be able to relate to it."

Featherweights duke it out for crown in Vegas

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

This week is big in Manny Pacquiao's quest for the featherweight crown.

On Saturday, May 8, Pacquiao (38-2-1, 29 KOs) meets IBF and WBA featherweight title holder Juan Manuel Marquez (42-2, 33 KOs) in a scheduled 12-round bout at the MGM Grand Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas. If the 25-year-old native of the Philippines defeats Marquez, he'll be in line to face Erik Morales for the WBC super featherweight championship this summer.

Saturday's fight, which airs live on HBO, potentially begins for Pacquiao a string of three consecutive bouts against top opponents: Marquez, Morales and Marco Antonio Barrera, the three-time WBO junior featherweight champion whom Pacquiao dispatched in impressive fashion last November with an 11th round TKO.

Larry Merchant, who will be ringside for HBO, worries that going up against that caliber of opponent repeatedly will eventually take its toll on Pacquiao. "He's in danger of overwhelming himself by fighting back to back to back the toughest guys out there," Merchant says. "It's hard to sustain your physical, mental and emotional peaks when you keep going up against top guys who are going to be the best they can possibly be when they face you. I mean, it's a physical challenge as well as a mental and emotional challenge to keep yourself up at that level. And undoubtedly, these (Marquez and Morales) are the two toughest guys out there right now. But I suppose in his mind, because he's an optimist and he believes he can beat these guys, he'll probably plan to fight Barrera after them and keep going. Yeah, that's certainly possible, if he gets through those two fights.

"I would say most observers think he's got a hard time getting through the first one," Merchant continues, "but he apparently believes that Marquez will be easy for him. Maybe he knows something that everybody else doesn't. But stylewise and every other wise, Marquez is a formidable opponent."

Marquez, a 30-year-old Mexico City native with a reputation as a counterpuncher with sting, might have the right style to give Pacquiao trouble. "He's a boxer-puncher," Merchant explains. "He's not a stereotypical Mexican fighter who plows ahead the way Pacquiao does. He's a smart counterpuncher with good, fast hands. He could hurt him and stop him, too. I'm not suggesting he can't punch. He can punch. But all I'm suggesting is that against a fighter like Pacquiao, who is aggressive, this is a guy who can defend as well as offend, and stylewise he can be a very difficult opponent for Pacquiao."

But Pacquiao, known for his footwork, athletic ability and a devastating left hand, has made adjustments of his own in recent years. "He's become a really great offensive fighter in the sense that he's not a guy who's as easy to hit as when we saw him a couple of years ago," Merchant says. "He's more defensive minded; he moves his head and body more as he goes on offense."

According to Merchant, a win for Marquez might finally give him the recognition that goes with being a champion. "There are titles and there are champions," Merchant says, "and right now, Marquez is a guy who has titles but he's not recognized as a champion. Pacquiao - because he beat Barrera, who was recognized as the champion - people in boxing recognize Pacquiao as the champion, even though Marquez has a couple of titles."

A victory for Pacquiao would put him among the stars of the sport. "If he's going to go back and fight Morales and if he wins and fights Morales, it will set him up as a star in the boxing world," Merchant says. "I mean, he's already close to that, but while it's unlikely that people beyond boxing will know much about Manny Pacquiao, if he can come through this gauntlet - and it is a gauntlet - he would be one of the top fighters in the game."

The undercard pits Miguel Cotto (19-0, 16 KOs) of Puerto Rico against Lovemore N'Dou (38-6-1, 24 KOs) of Sydney, Australia, in a scheduled 12-round super lightweight clash.

"NASCAR Racing" Sunday, May 2 (Fox, 3 p.m. ET): Consistency has been the hallmark of Kurt Busch's NASCAR season thus far. After seven races, Busch hadn't finished worse than 16th, and heading into Martinsville two weeks ago, he held a 19-point lead in the Nextel Cup standings. Today, Busch is in Fontana, Calif., to defend his Auto Club 500 title, won when he outdueled three other drivers with 13 laps to go. Busch racked up four wins in 2003 en route to an 11th-place finish overall. "MLB Baseball" Sunday, May 2 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): More than half of baseball's 30 teams have a realistic shot at the playoffs, including, the Boston Red Sox. Solid pitching and veteran leaders such as David Ortiz, who finished fifth in A.L. MVP voting last season, have many thinking this is finally Boston's year. It may be another year to forget for the Sox opponent tonight, the Texas Rangers, whose lack of pitching should doom them to their fifth straight last-place finish in the AL West. "The Season" Thursday, May 6 (ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): As the NHL playoffs continue, ESPN documents how one NHL team qualified for the postseason in the Part 2 premiere of this reality-based series. The second half of the Colorado Avalanche's season is the focus, with viewers afforded a day-to-day look at the Avs preparing to battle for its third Stanley Cup since 1996. Hearst isn't bad, he's just written that way

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

Even though some daytime characters commit the most loathsome acts, it doesn't mean they are completely evil.

This is the message that Rick Hearst tries to convey by playing Ric Lansing on "General Hospital." While it is true that Ric has done detestable things, Hearst says it's important to look at the justifications for those actions.

"I have always liked darker characters because the challenge is to find the humanity in them," he explains. "I watch specials on serial killers or other criminals and get to listen to where it comes from. It is not justified, but there is a reason. The same applies to Ric. Otherwise, I'd just be twisting my moustache."

And playing a villain like Snidely Whiplash is not something that interests the father of two. Rather, he enjoys playing characters' nuances.

Perhaps because he has been investigating the roots of criminal behavior, Hearst has come to realize how important a good childhood is. His answer is to not only do the best he can for his two, but also to become affiliated with Big Brothers and Big Sisters to help others.

"For boys, especially, having a strong male figure in their lives is extremely important," he says. "In homes where there is a non-existent parent situation, kids are left with very little direction, and it makes for a harder climb as they get older - to be able to find their way in the world."

Dear Paulette: We are retired and have become very interested in "The Young and the Restless" and "The Bold and the Beautiful." Is there a way to order any or all of past tapes? -Mr. & Mrs. Robert F. Farnam, Ringgold, Ga.

Dear Reader: I hadn't heard of any video packages but I did check with a spokesperson to make sure, and the answer was no. Unlike prime-time TV shows, which air approximately 22 episodes per season, daytime dramas broadcast 250-260 - way too many to make it possible at this point in time. I have heard there are fans that record every day and save the episodes. Perhaps you can find someone in your area.

Movie: Unbreakable
Bruce Willis reunited with M. Night Shyamalan, also his director on "The Sixth Sense," for this 2000 story of the lone survivor of a catastrophic train wreck. Played by Willis, he's deemed to be a walking miracle by others — particularly one man (Samuel L. Jackson, also Willis' co-star in "Die Hard With a Vengeance") who believes his own condition can be explained by the situation. Robin Wright Penn also appears.

7 p.m. on 38-WB
7th Heaven
Lucy's (Beverly Mitchell) worst fear seems to come true when she finds Kevin and Roxanne (George Stults, Rachel Blanchard) in a compromising position in the new episode "Lost and Found." Cecilia and Martin (Ashlee Simpson, Tyler Hoechlin) have little time to spend together. Ruthie and Peter (Mackenzie Rosman, Scotty Leavenworth) become lost during a school field trip.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS
Antiques Roadshow
The top discoveries made to date by this program are compiled in the new episode "Roadshow's Greatest Finds." Value is one of the pertinent factors, as are the condition and the rarity of the items. A blanket that belonged to a Navajo chief, an 18th-century table found at a yard sale, and a gold-handled sword given by an American president to a general are among the treasures featured.

7 p.m. on AMC
Movie: Silver Streak
Movie audiences took a shine to director Arthur Hiller's genial 1976 Hitchcock knockoff about a meek executive (Gene Wilder) who becomes involved in an art thief's (Patrick McGeehan) bizarre murder plot during a cross-country train ride. Things pick up in the second half, once Richard Pryor shows up for his first, and best, comic teaming with Wilder. Jill Clayburgh and Scatman Crothers co-star; Henry Mancini composed the score.

7 p.m. on TMC
Movie: Awakenings
Robert De Niro plays a long-comatose man returned to consciousness under the care of a sympathetic neurologist (Robin Williams) in this 1990 drama directed by Penny Marshall. John Heard, Julie Kavner and Max von Sydow co-star as the doctor's colleagues. Anne Meara and Alice Drummond play similarly afflicted patients. Penelope Ann Miller also stars.

7 p.m. and TBS
Movie: Ever After
Drew Barrymore lights up the screen in this 1998 retelling of the Cinderella story set in 16th-century Europe. Her character, Danielle, has the requisite wicked stepmother (Anjelica Huston) and dirty domestic jobs, but she has far more pluck and determination than the usual fairy-tale heroine. Dougray Scott ("Deep Impact") plays the prince, with Patrick Godfrey as Leonardo da Vinci, the closest thing this has to a fairy godmother.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS
Everybody Loves Raymond
Debra (Patricia Heaton) is talking too much about her marriage, at least in Ray's (Ray Romano) view, in the new episode "Blabbermouths." Some intimate details get back to him through Robert (Brad Garrett), who learned them from Amy (Monica Horan), who got them from Debra ... leaving Ray determined to even the score.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That '70s Show

A wedding is the setting for relationship complications in the new episode "5:15." To Eric's (Topher Grace) chagrin, Donna (Laura Prepon) agrees to go with Mitch (guest star Seth Green) to his brother's wedding. Fez (Wilmer Valderrama) also attends and poses as a wealthy person to attract another guest (guest star Rachel Bilson, "The O.C."). Hyde (Danny Masterson) enjoys cable television.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

"Talisman," a new episode directed by series co-star John Schneider, gives a Kiwachte Indian (guest star Nathaniel Arcand) powers like Clark's (Tom Welling). A fabled knife imbues the other young man with the extraordinary abilities, and he intends to use the weapon against Lionel Luthor (John Glover) unless Clark can get there first.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Star Trek: Enterprise

Archer (Scott Bakula), Trip (Connor Trinneer) and the rest of the team get a remarkable warning en route to a meeting with the Xindi Council in the new episode "E2." The crew members cross paths with a starship from the future, piloted by their descendants — who have passed through a wormhole that could thrust Enterprise back in time a full century and pave the way for the end of Earth.

7 p.m. on FAM

Movie: Mr. Baseball

Tom Selleck steps up to the plate in this 1992 comedy about a washed-up pro baseball player. When he is traded to a Japanese team, he has a chance to revive his career. While he works on his swing, he also must deal with the cultural differences he finds in Asian society. Directed by Fred Schepisi, the movie also stars Ken Takakura, Aya Takanashi and Dennis Haysbert ("24").

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Angel

Although vampire slayer Buffy plays a role in the new episode "The Girl in Question," Sarah Michelle Gellar doesn't appear in the story. Angel and Spike (David Boreanaz, James Marsters) go to Rome to save Buffy from The Immortal. They have an additional mission, since they also try to stop the demon version of a gang war from breaking out.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

NBC

On the eve of the "Friends" finale, the sitcom's stats reflect on the past 10 years of working together — and, in a very genuine sense, growing together — in this new two-hour edition.

Connor Trinneer

of the magazine series. All of them have made movies, to varying degrees of success, but no one can ever deny the popularity and sizable paychecks that their work has yielded.

8 p.m. and DSC

Dr. Mengele

He was a character in the book and movie "The Boys From Brazil," but Dr. Josef Mengele was notoriously famous in real life as the so-called "Angel of Death" of the Auschwitz Internment camp during World War II. This new profile probes Mengele's disappearance, which allegedly was solved when his bones were found by an archeologist in a Brazilian cemetery. Mengele's supposed role in a planned Fourth Reich also is considered.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: Kingpin

The Farrelly brothers bring their trademark humor to this tale of an alcoholic ex-bowling champ (Woody Harrelson) and his protegee (Randy Quaid). The latter happens to be Amish, and bowling is his only vice; that changes when his mentor introduces him to alcohol, tobacco and female arms.

8:45 p.m. on AMC

Movie: Will Penny

One of the best adult Westerns made to date, writer-director Tom Gries' 1968 character study casts Charlton Heston in the title role of a cowboy who patrols for trespassers on a ranch. His own home becomes the shelter for two uninvited visitors, a mother and son (Joan Hackett and Jon Francis, Gries' son, later known as Jon Gries).

Movie: Cleopatra

Legendary for its production overruns (which nearly sank its studio, 20th Century-Fox) and the on-set romance of Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, this 1963 epic certainly has scope in recounting the saga of the queen of Egypt. Cleopatra (Taylor) uses her beauty and wiles to exploit the rivalry between Julius Caesar (Rex Harrison) and Marc Antony (Burton) for her heart — and to shake up the Roman Empire even more.

7:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Friends

Everyone has known it's been coming, and now the time is here: The New York pals wrap up their comedy series' 10-year run with a one-hour finale (airing after an hour-long retrospective). Joey (Matt LeBlanc) is moving on to his own show this fall — but first, he'll have to say goodbye to Ross, Rachel, Monica, Chandler and Phoebe (David Schwimmer, Jennifer Aniston, Courteney Cox, Arquette, Matthew Perry, Lisa Kudrow).

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

An amusement-park tragedy results in six deaths in the new episode "Turning of the Screws." After a roller coaster leaves its tracks and causes the fatalities, Grissom (William Petersen) and his team must determine whether the situation was an accident.

8 p.m. on USA

Movie: For Richer or Poorer

Although the premise doesn't take long to set up, plenty of laughs are mined from this 1997 teaming of Tim Allen and Kirstie Alley. They play a wealthy couple swindled out of riches by their accountant. To avoid a persistent IRS agent, they pose as Amish people and hide out on a Pennsylvania farm. Wayne Knight co-stars.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Without a Trace

A college football coach (guest star Tim DeKay, "Carnivale") disappears after his team's poor performance leads to his firing in the new episode "The Season," directed by actor Tim Matheson.

Friday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Movie: Spy Kids

This family-friendly adventure takes the premise of the forgettable Leslie Nielsen farce "2001: A Space Travesy" — an evil plot to replace world leaders with cloned replicas — and gets it right. Maybe it's the cuteness of the title characters, two secret agents' offspring who take it upon themselves to stop the bad guy from sending in the clones. Antonio Banderas, Carla Gugino, Alexa Vega, Daryl Sabara and Alan Cumming star.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

George Lopez

Series co-producer Sandra Bullock reprises her earlier guest role as perennially clumsy Amy in the new episode "Bachelor Party." She wants her ex-boyfriend (guest star Nick Offerman) back — just as he's preparing to marry Benny (Belita Moreno), leaving George (George Lopez) in a tough spot.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Reba

Convinced that Reba (Reba McEntire) has meddled too much, Barbara Jean (Melissa Peterman) gives her the silent treatment — which could last for some time — in the new episode "Girls' Night Out." Cheyenne (JoAnna Garcia) tries to reunite the two women so they can help her celebrate her 21st birthday.

7 p.m. on TMC

Movie: Bowling for Columbine

Although he caused a stir with his speech when he won an Oscar for this 2002 documentary, Michael Moore — who also was honored by the Cannes Film Festival — delivers a powerful portrait of the gun culture in the United States, using the high-school shootings in the little Colorado town as his springboard. In one of the most-discussed sequences, Moore interviews then-National Rifle Association chief Charlton Heston on the subject.

7:30 p.m. on 38-WB

What I Like About You

The sitcom's second season ends with Holly (Amanda Bynes) trying to choose between Henry and Vince (Michael McMillian, Nick Zano) before she leaves for Paris. Val (Jennie Garth) tries to get her mind off Rick's (guest star Ed Kerr) imminent wedding by planning a trip to Venice with Lauren (Leslie Grossman). Gary and Tina (Wesley Jonathan, Allison Munn) consider romance.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Hope & Faith

Kelly Ripa is reunited with two of her "All My Children" cohorts, Rebecca

Budig and Cameron Mathison, in the new episode "Trade Show."

Faith (Ripa) isn't happy to find some of the current performers on her former soap opera making unflattering remarks about her. She then hooks up with a two-bit talent agent (Dominic Chianese) to regain her self-esteem and make some money for the household.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS
JAG

Harm (David James Elliott) defends the privacy of a woman (guest star Susan Walters) whose Marine son has been killed in Iraq in the new episode "Coming Home." As reporters try to interview her, Mac and Bud (Catherine Bell, Patrick Labyorteaux) question the integrity of the armored vest worn by the slain soldier.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Grounded for Life

In the comedy series' season finale, "Space Camp Oddity," Brad (Bret Harrison) resents Lily's (Lynsey Bartilson) belief that he made up his alleged space-camp girlfriend (Mila Kun). He leaves for the summer with the other young woman. Hope (Kristin Dattilo) tells a secret about Eddie (Kevin Fitzgerald Corrigan) to Claudia (Megyn Price), who tells Sean (Donal Logue) — who tells Eddie.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Third Watch

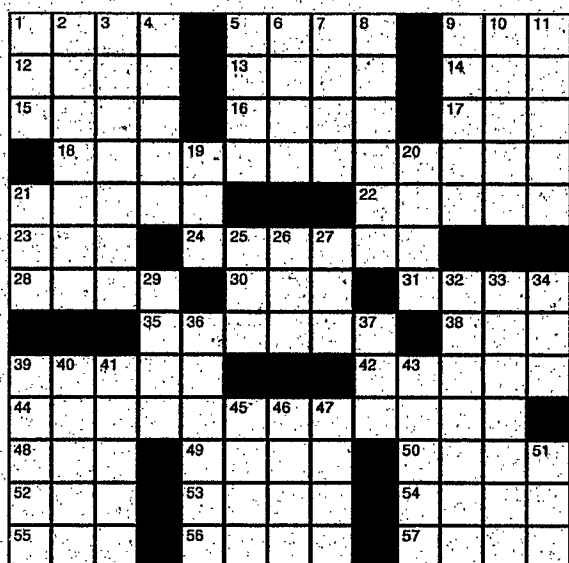

Gene Simmons of music's KISS leaves most of his makeup off to guest star as a revenge-obsessed crime boss in the new episode "Monsters." He orders his minions to target law officers after his son is killed during a car chase with police. Yokas (Molly Price) receives shocking personal news.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"THE LAST SAMURAI": Tom Cruise skillfully demonstrates the way of the sword in director Edward Zwick's ("Legends of the Fall") sweeping adventure about an 18th-century American military man caught between Japanese factions. Japan's leader recruits Capt. Nathan Algren (Cruise) to give training in then-modern techniques of warfare, in preparation for new approaches to global diplomacy. Eventually, Algren comes to regret opposing the Samurai warriors he's meant to depose. Co-stars include Oscar nominee Ken Watanabe, Timothy Spall, Billy Connolly and Tony Goldwyn. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Zwick; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; footage of Japanese premiere of the film.  (R: AS, P, V)

"PETER PAN": In a noteworthy difference from earlier versions, an age-appropriate actor - Jeremy Sumpter - is cast as the title character in this live-action retelling of James M. Barrie's classic story about Neverland's most famous dweller. Helped by fairy ally Tinkerbell (Ludvine Sagnier, "Swimming Pool"), the boy who never grew up battles the sinister Captain Hook (Jason Isaacs) to protect his young friend Wendy (Rachel Hurd-Wood) and others. Director P.J. Hogan ("My Best Friend's Wedding") reinvigorates the familiar tale by integrating fantastic special effects. DVD extras: DVD extras:

Video Vantage

"making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; alternate ending; DVD-ROM features.  (PG: AS, V)

"CALENDAR GIRLS": A man's death prompts his widow (Julie Walters) and her closest friend (Helen Mirren) to conceive a unique tribute to him in a highly entertaining comedy based - amazing as it may seem - on a true story. The two Englishwomen gather others in their age group to create a calendar featuring them in the nude, with the proceeds going to the hospital where the deceased man was cared for. Annette Crosbie and Penelope Wilton also are in director Nigel Cole's cast. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: AS, N, P)

"GIRL WITH A PEARL EARRING": At the same time she was earning raves for "Lost in Translation," Scarlett Johansson also was making an impact on critics with her performance in this visually elegant drama. Small wonder it has that quality, since Johansson plays a domestic who becomes the inspiration for a timeless painting by legendary artist Johannes Vermeer (Colin Firth). They try to hide their deepening relationship from Vermeer's wife (Essie Davis). Tom Wilkinson ("In the Bedroom") and Judy Parfitt co-star. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Peter Webber; "Anatomy of a Scene" documentary.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"CHASING LIBERTY": The daughter (Mandy Moore) of the U.S. president (Mark Harmon) chafes under the constant supervision she faces, so she grabs a taste of independence during an overseas trip in this light but enjoyable comedy-adventure. She evades the Secret Service agents assigned to her, and takes off with a charismatic young Englishman (Matthew Goode) who doesn't seem to know whom she is. Jeremy Piven, Annabella Sciorra and Caroline Goodall ("The Princess Diaries") co-star. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Moore and Goode; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes; concert performance by the Roots.  (PG: AS, P, V)

"PARTY OF FIVE: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": The critically acclaimed, award-winning Fox drama series makes its DVD debut with a five-disc set. Matthew Fox, Scott Wolf, Neve Campbell and Lacey Chabert play orphaned San Francisco siblings trying to stay together and support one another as they make their way without parental guidance. Paula Devicq co-stars as Kirsten, the baby sitter who appeals to Charlie and Bailey (Fox, Wolf). DVD extras: audio commentary with cast members and creator-producers Amy Lippman and Christopher Keyser; "making-of" documentary; retrospective documentary. (Not rated: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"IN AMERICA" (May 11): Recent Oscar nominee Samantha Morton and Djimon Hounsou are in the cast of director Jim Sheridan's drama about an immigrant family. (PG-13: AS, P)

"SCARY MOVIE 3" (May 11): Heroine Cindy (Anna Faris) finds more comical trouble while working as a TV news reporter. Charlie Sheen and Pamela Anderson co-star. (R: AS, P, V)

"AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS" (May 18): David Niven, Shirley MacLaine and Cantinflas play global travelers as this Jules Verne-inspired screen classic makes its DVD debut. (G)

"MIRACLE" (May 18): Kurt Russell plays Herb Brooks, the coach of the U.S. hockey team that scored a surprising victory over the Russian squad at the 1980 Winter Olympics. (PG: P)

Boys of Babylon growing up as 'Queer as Folk' turns 4

By John Crook
© Zap2it

With gay marriage and adoption rights, as well as other civil issues, dominating the headlines, is it any wonder "Queer as Folk" actors Robert Gant and Hal Sparks feel as if they are working at a kind of "ground zero" these days?

"It's definitely very exciting," says Gant, who plays HIV-positive English professor Ben Bruckner in the Showtime drama, now in its fourth season on Sunday nights. "This show is unique in that it isn't just entertainment - although it certainly is entertaining - but it reflects these incredible social changes going on, as well as kind of being a catalyst for some of those changes."

"I think a lot of us took this job for that very reason," echoes Sparks, who plays Ben's life partner, Michael Novotny. "I know I did. When this show was first starting, both straight and gay actors refused to read for parts because it was considered career suicide. My manager said, 'This will either be an important, impactful show, or it will disappear. There will be no middle ground.' I took a chance that it would be socially relevant, and that's certainly how it has turned out."

When the series, adapted from a controversial but critically acclaimed 1999 UK miniseries, premiered in 2000, it was denounced in some quarters of the gay community for the casual sex and drug use among many of its characters, who frequented the gay bar Babylon. As those characters have aged and matured over the seasons, however, the show has likewise morphed into a more complex drama exploring both topical issues as well as the internal emotional lives of its characters.

This season, Ben and Michael prepare to adopt Hunter (Harris Allan), a troubled street hustler they took into their home last season. Their flamboyant friend Emmett (Peter Paige) tries to immerse himself in his new party planning business to get over his ill-fated affair with Ted (Scott Lowell), a crystal meth addict struggling to maintain his sobriety and re-establish connections with the friends he had alienated during a near-lethal bender.

Somewhat redeemed by his heroic acts of sacrifice last season, self-absorbed advertising genius Brian (Gale Harold) starts up his own public relations firm while fretting that his young boyfriend, Justin (Randy Harrison), is getting a little too drawn into a new gay vigilante group, the Pink Posse.

The sexual candor, and outrageous, often blue, jokes are still very much a part of the show, but they are balanced by a slightly more reflective tone and compelling story lines that include the death of a series regular within the first few episodes of the season.

"This has always been the story of boys becoming men - not to exclude the women on the show," says Ron Cowen, who created the U.S. series with longtime writing-producing partner Daniel Lipman.

"It's about growing up, and the characters were in their mid to late 20s in the first two seasons, whereas now most of them are in their 30s. Before, they went out a lot. Now they are concentrating on family, relationships and careers. Many fans, I think, became more involved as the focus of these characters changed and became more complicated."

Cowen and Lipman both concede that they were startled by the storm of controversy that greeted the show upon its premiere.

"The response from certain elements of the gay community and press shocked us, actually," Lipman says. "If someone like our Brian character were straight, he would be considered a stud. Because he's gay, suddenly he's a slut."

"Many gay people seemed threatened by our decision to ... show gay characters who have a sex life," Cowen recalls. "Gay characters are usually clowns or eunuchs. That's a very prejudicial view. I'm not sure why so many gay people have this problem with seeing gay characters sexualized, but I can tell you, we're going to keep doing it."

Gant says he likewise was taken aback by the overt hostility some gay viewers expressed toward the series.

"I can certainly accept criticism about our show," he says, "but please, why not make it constructive criticism? We haven't learned to do that as a community. We devour our young. This show is an imperfect entity that is trying to serve and to tell our story in some way, at least a piece of it, and many in our community aren't willing to give that a chance. That's starting to change, I think, because all of us are growing up, and in that way what is happening on the show again parallels what is happening in our community."

Both he and Sparks agree, with the many fans who feel the show really found its feet creatively during last season.

"Prior to this, there was absolutely nothing of this kind on American TV, nothing to talk about the lives and struggles of gay people, so viewers wanted the show to be all things to all people, which clearly was not possible," Gant says. "This poor show had so much on its back. Like Atlas, it was having to carry the whole gay world."

"The second season ... was all over the place, trying to find a way to honestly address what was going on for lesbian and gay people. Last season we totally just clicked into gear. We found these characters' voices and where they were going. Different people relate to different characters, but I have gotten some amazing e-mails from people saying that Ben just really resonates for them."

Robert Gant says his role as an HIV-positive English professor on the Showtime Sunday drama series "Queer as Folk" is "the character that I just felt internally was the one I was supposed to do."
